Housing Scandal Hurting Efforts, Romney Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing Secretary George Romney says inner-city housing problems are rooted in the sociological ills of the central cities, but are aggravated by untested programs, lax administration and unscrupulous operators.

"Shady, get-rich-quick schemes," Romney told the House Appropriations Committee Monday, "have involved some real estate salesmen, some builders, some developers and even some housing authorities who lined their pockets with the 'seed money' and even with the food money of unsophisticated home buyers and renters."

"Regrettably, some FHA (Federal Housing Administration) personnel were involved," Romney continued. "Graft, conflict of interest and corruption have resulted in asking the FBI to investigate a total of over 750 cases, including those that we have referred to them, some involving FHA personnel."

But, Romney said, it would be "a serious mistake to conclude that the housing problem we face is only the result of the character of the housing programs, their inadequate administration or the unscrupulous activities of speculators and fast-buck artists."

The housing problem, he said, "results from all the social, economic and physical problems affecting our central cities."

Romney testified before the committee in support of his department's $5.25-billion fiscal 1973 budget request.

Although the central-city crisis "has had a massive and negative impact on our federal housing programs," Romney said, from the standpoint of the nation as a whole "we have had a national housing success, not a national failure."

After becoming secretary in 1969, he said, he directed the FHA's energies toward problems of housing production, higher costs and procuring mortgage money. Before that, he said, the FHA had limited its home-insurance programs largely to the suburbs.

In 1968, he said, housing legislation vigorously promoted subsidized housing.

"In retrospect," he added, "it was a mistake—in part—not to realize that the FHA was not prepared for its new role in central cities and its exposure to speculators and fast-buck artists."

A federal grand jury in Brooklyn recently returned indictments against 10 firms and 40 persons, accusing them of a multimillion-dollar scheme to defraud the FHA on slum-housing construction.

British Labor Party Faces Major Crisis

LONDON (AP) — Three top men quit the labor party's high command Monday night in protest against the twists and turns of Harold Wilson's Common Market policies. It was the worst crisis to hit the Labor party in 20 years.

The three were Roy Jenkins, the deputy party leader Wilson's heir apparent; Harold Lever, a financial expert; and George Thomson, Labor's authority on defense.

Shirley Williams, the party's spokesman on domestic affairs, said she, too, would quit if the party did not adopt a "more constructive attitude to Britain's membership" in the Common Market.

While in power, Wilson firmly advocated membership. But after the Conservatives ousted Labor in the general election of 1970 and it became apparent from public opinion polls that a majority of the British public opposed joining the European Economic Community, Wilson changed his tune, saying he favored membership in principle but opposed the terms the Conservatives had negotiated.

Jenkins led nearly 90 other Laborites in revolt against Wilson on Oct. 28 when they voted with the government to approve membership in the Common Market in principle. That split was papered over, but the parting of the ways came after Wilson and his supporters in the party leadership decided to join Conservative opponents of Market membership in demanding a referendum on the issue, an idea that suddenly became attractive to them after President George Pompidou announced one in France.

Jenkins accused Wilson of opportunism, in effect siding with those who charged Wilson abandoned his previous support for Common Market membership because he thought the change might put the Laborites back into power.

2nd Inmate Is Slain At Ohio Pen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A second inmate has been stabbed to death at the State Penitentiary in 24 hours, Warden Harold Cardwell said Tuesday. A third inmate was in serious condition in another stabbing.

The latest victim was Michael McCargo, 27, serving a life sentence for murder from Cuyahoga County. He died Monday night after being stabbed in the back several times in the prison kitchen.

Earlier, Marion L. Page, 27, died after being stabbed in the neck while working in the Ohio Penal Industries' office on the prison grounds. He had been serving a life sentence for murder from Cuyahoga County.

In serious condition with stab wounds in the back and leg was Charles E. Dixon, 22, serving a life term for murder from Franklin County.

He was stabbed while working in the prison dining hall, Cardwell said, and an inmate was being questioned.

The warden said McCargo and fellow inmate Shelby Willis 53, serving 10-25 years for armed robbery in Hamilton County, were working in the prison kitchen when an argument erupted and McCargo was stabbed. Willis refused to surrender a butcher knife but was finally disarmed by a prison guard, Cardwell said.

In the fatal stabbing of Page, Cardwell said inmate Doyle W. Manning, 32, surrendered a homemade knife. Manning is serving 60-150 years from Hamilton County for robbery.

27 Red Tanks Destroyed

Viet Town Abandoned

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces abandoned a second district town north of Saigon Monday, but the Saigon government claimed more than 500 enemy troops killed on the northern front below the demilitarized zone and an entire tank battalion destroyed there by U.S. B52 bombers.

Delayed field reports said that several hundred rangers and their families were evacuated by helicopter from the town of Bo Duc because of heavy enemy pressure and shelling attacks.

Bo Duc is 80 miles north of Saigon and about 15 miles northeast of Loc Ninh, which the North Vietnamese captured last week. Bo Duc is deep in largely abandoned rubber plantation country, and its main military function was to monitor enemy infiltration across the Cambodian border five miles away.

Field reports said the pullout was orderly.

There were conflicting reports about North Vietnamese troop movements in the border region north of Saigon. An American general said the enemy forces that swept down Highway 13 had been badly battered and were on the run back to Cambodia. But other field reports said the North Vietnamese were moving reinforcements into South Vietnam.

The Communists also intensified their shelling attack in the central highlands after a week's lull, hitting a series of government bases. In the worst attack, rockets slammed into South Vietnamese troops bunched together at the Kontum air field awaiting transportation; field reports said 23 of the troops were killed and more than a score wounded.

Delayed reports said the tank battalion was wiped out Sunday in one of the most successful B52 strikes of the war. The reports said waves of the giant Stratofortresses destroyed 27 tanks and three artillery pieces and killed 100 North Vietnamese.

The target area was five miles northwest of Dong Ha and seven miles below the DMZ. The reports said South Vietnamese officials confirmed the destruction.

Nearly 60 more B52 strikes were flown today across South Vietnam and the big bombers dropped about 1,800 tons of explosives on North Vietnamese

Nixon Determined To Stop Reds

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Official U.S. circles view the massive buildup of American air and naval power in Indochina as a message from President Nixon to Hanoi that North Vietnam is not going to win a military victory in its biggest offensive since Tet 1968.

But "we're not going to use ground forces, only air and naval gunfire," says one source. "It is very clear Nixon cannot afford to use ground troops."

Nixon himself once said he did not want to be the first American president to lose a war, and some observers see the sudden recall of Air Force Marine and Navy units as a turning back of the clock.

The last elements of the Marine Air Wing left nearly a year ago, now they are back at Da Nang. U.S. B52 bombers hadn't struck inside North Vietnam in more than four years; they returned to the North Monday and went deeper than they ever had.

There is some skepticism about administration statements that U.S. ground troops will not be used to counter the North Vietnamese offensive. It has been learned that contingency plans exist for the use of such combat forces, and a Marine landing team is poised off the coast.

Many times in the past in Vietnam, the thing that couldn't happen did happen.

Administration officials insist U.S. troop strength in Vietnam will be cut to 69,000 men by the end of this month despite the offensive. Yet American strength deployed outside of the country but committed to the war is growing.

The weekly strength summary issued Monday reported 90,000 American troops in Vietnam, a drop during the week of 5,500 men. But during the same week ships joining the Fleet off the coast increased naval manpower there by 3,000 men to 18,000. Several more ships have arrived since last Thursday, the closest date for the official strength summary.

The Air Force has 30,000 men at bases in Thailand, all engaged in the war.

More airmen on Guam fly B52 missions against targets in Indochina, and Air Force transport crews from bases in Taiwan rotate in and out of Vietnam.

In recent weeks, air action has accounted for a higher proportion of American casualties than enemy ground attacks.

Kennedy Says Beard Doctor May Face Fraud Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., today asked for a Justice Department explanation of why the Senate Judiciary Committee, looking into Richard G. Kleindienst's nomination to be attorney general, was not informed of a federal investigation of a doctor who submitted testimony to the committee.

Kennedy said Henry Peterson, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, should explain why the probe of Dr. L.M. Radetsky for alleged Medicare fraud was not made known to the committee. Radetsky was one of Dita D. Beard's cardiologists in Denver when the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. lobbyist was being treated for a heart problem.

Peterson is scheduled to testify at today's hearings into the Kleindienst nomination.

Following an investigation in 1971, the Social Security Administration referred a probe of Radetsky to the U.S. attorney in Denver, who in turn passed the information on to the Justice Department in Washington, Kennedy said.

"As of March 27, 1972," Kennedy said, "it is the intention of the U.S. attorney's office to review the case in detail during April, and, if prosecution were warranted, to present the case to the federal grand jury scheduled for the first week of May."

Kennedy asked that Peterson be ready at today's session to explain the Justice Department's failure to tell the committee of its investigations.

In testimony Monday, the head of ITT's Washington office said he deliberately misled Mrs. Beard when he told her the White House asked him about the firm's commitment to the Republican National Convention.

W. R. Merriam, Mrs. Beard's boss, told the Senate Judiciary Committee Monday, however, that he never mentioned a $600,000 figure nor did he ask her to write him a memo on ITT's commitment to the convention.

The committee's inquiry into the controversy surrounding acting Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, ITT and the GOP convention in San Diego is in its seventh week.

Gilligan Will Visit Ohio Penitentiary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan will visit Ohio's Penitentiary Wednesday with his Task Force on Correction to explain what he has done to implement the group's recommendations of last December.

Task Force Chairman Judge Bernard Fridman of Cleveland and Gilligan will hold a news conference in the prison yard at 9:30 a.m.

Corrections Chief Bennett Cooper will also attend.

Sheriff Breaks Darbyville Gun Theft Case

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff culminated his investigation of the Dec. 15 theft of over $600 in guns from a Darbyville home last night by arresting two 16-year-old Columbus area juveniles.

The two youths are in the juvenile section of the Pickaway County jail awaiting detention hearing in Juvenile Court. They are both charged on separate warrants of breaking and entering an inhabited dwelling in the night season and grand larceny.

The six guns, valued at $622 were stolen from the Charles Buskirk home on the Circleville-London Northern Rd. Dec. 15 after a side door was forced open.

Radcliff received a lead on the case Feb. 1 when a confidential informant told him of illegal gun selling on Williams Rd., Columbus, and supplied the name of the seller.

After extensive questioning of the suspect, a relative of Mrs. Buskirk, the boy finally confessed to the theft April 7 after taking a polygraph examination.

He implicated the other juvenile and told Radcliff that they had sold the guns for $250 to J. C. Radiator Co. on Williams Rd. Columbus.

Radcliff located the owner of the shop Monday night in a Columbus apartment complex and recovered the weapons.

Chile To Hit U.S. Meddling

ITT Documents Spark Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring U.S. denials of wrongdoing, Chile will formally accuse the United States of attempting to block the election of President Salvador Allende.

Chile's undersecretary for foreign affairs, Anibal Palma, said in an interview Monday that a series of documents attributed to officials of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. offer proof of U.S. interference in violation of Article 18 of the charter of the Organization of American States.

Palma, head of the Chilean delegation to an OAS general assembly meeting which opens today, said he will outline his charges in a speech before the assembly Friday.

The documents, released last month by columnist Jack Anderson, indicate that ITT made repeated efforts to persuade the U.S. government to head off Allende's installation as president in November 1970.

One document alleges that ITT was prepared to assist in sums up to seven figures to prevent Allende's election and thereby salvage the firm's multimillion-dollar business interests in Chile.

The documents indicate there was support from some State Department and Central Intelligence Agency officials for a stop-Allende campaign. Other officials named in the documents are depicted as being flatly opposed to any such campaign.

State Department officials, while acknowledging privately that ITT sought U.S. support to prevent Allende's election, have said publicly that the United States made no attempt to influence Chile's electoral process.

7th Gang Slaying Reported; Police Cautious On Motive

NEW YORK (AP) — Police found the bullet-punctured body of a man in the trunk of an abandoned auto late Monday night after receiving an anonymous tip to check a Brooklyn parking lot "if you're interested in the Joe Gallo case."

It was the seventh gangland style execution in the city in the past two weeks and appeared to add to the growing evidence of underworld turmoil although police say they have not yet found evidence to link any of the killings.

The victim was identified by his fingerprints as Richard Grossman, 36, of Brooklyn. He had been shot in the back of the head and three or four times in the body. His tarpaulin-wrapped body was found in the trunk of a car. Police said he could have been dead as long as a week.

Grossman had been arrested five times since 1957 on charges including rape, burglary, possession of stolen property, grand larceny and forgery, police said.

Detectives went to the parking lot after a mystery male caller telephoned Brooklyn homicide headquarters. He gave his brief message, the address of the lot and hung up before detectives could question him.

Asked if the latest slaying was connected with last Friday's killing of Brooklyn mobster Joseph "Crazy Joe" Gallo, Asst. Dist. Atty. Edward Rappaport, replied, "Who's to say?"

Gallo went to his grave Monday after two more men were found slain in gangland fashion. They were Gennaro Ciprio, 31, a racket-connected restaurateur gunned down outside his Brooklyn business, and Frank Ferrario, 41, a New Jersey laundryman whose 340-pound body was found in a lower Manhattan parking lot.

Deputy Police Commissioner Robert Daley expressed "cautious optimism" during the day that police would solve Gallo's murder but declined to view the recent string of killings as a mob war.

"Perhaps we're getting a rash of Mafia killings, like you get a rash of hijackings or bombings," said Daley, "but there's no indication yet that these guys are related to the Gallo killing."

Apollo Crew Examined

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 16 astronauts receive their final major preflight physicals today and Thomas K. Mattingly hopes that medical lightning doesn't strike twice.

Nearly two years ago, during a similar examination, it was discovered that Mattingly had been exposed to German measles. As a result he lost a seat on the Apollo 13 flight three days before launching. He was replaced by a backup pilot.

Doctors say there's little chance they will find anything wrong today during a four-hour examination of Mattingly, John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr., who are to rocket toward the moon Sunday.

Because of the Apollo 13 incident, all Apollo crews now enter medical isolation three weeks before launch. Since March 27, the astronauts have been confined to three areas of the space center—their crew quarters, the training building and the launch pad.

Only 109 persons are authorized to work directly with them. All, including the spacemen, have been immunized against common diseases.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The French Connection," a slambang modern thriller about New York police chasing narcotics smugglers, has won the Oscar race with five Academy awards including best picture of the year.

The star of the film, Gene Hackman, won the best actor award. William Friedkin, the film's director, received the best director Oscar.

Jane Fonda won the gold-plated statuette for best actress as the classy, cynical call girl of "Klute."

Honors for supporting players in Monday night's 44th annual movie academy presentations went to Ben Johnson and Cloris Leachman of "The Last Picture Show."

Johnson played the pool hall-movie house-cafe proprietor and central citizen of a small, dusty Texas town. Miss Leachman portrayed the sex-starved, unfaithful wife of the high school football coach.

Named the best foreign-language film was Vittorio De Sica's "The Garden of the Finzi Continis," a story of a rich Jewish family in wartime Italy.

Isaac Hayes won the best song award for his "Theme from Shaft."

The emotional peak for a fiery-spangled audience of 2,900 in the Music Center Pavilion came with the appearance of white-haired Charlie Chaplin to receive an honorary Oscar and a standing, roaring ovation.

"Words are so futile, so feeble," he said in a halting, shallow voice after acknowledging the long ovation with waves, smiles, thrown kisses and slight bows.

"I can only say thank you for the honor of inviting me here. You're wonderful, sweet people."

Master of ceremonies Jack Lemmon handed him a Chaplinesque cane and bowler, the hat falling off his head as Chaplin did a comic gesture with it. The comedian's wife Oona and stars of the show gathered around him as the orchestra played a Chaplin song, "Smile."

Academy President Daniel Taradash had introduced the longtime self-exile from Hollywood.

Housing Scandal Hurting Efforts, Romney Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing Secretary George Romney says inner-city housing problems are rooted in the sociological ills of the central cities, but are aggravated by untested programs, lax administration and unscrupulous operators.

"Shady, get-rich-quick schemes," Romney told the House Appropriations Committee Monday, "have involved some real estate salesmen, some builders, some developers and even some housing authorities who lined their pockets with the 'seed money' and even with the food money of unscrupulous home buyers and renters."

"Regrettably, some FHA (Federal Housing Administration) personnel were involved," Romney continued. "Graft, conflict of interest and corruption have resulted in asking the FBI to investigate a total of over 750 cases, including those that we have referred to them, some involving FHA personnel."

But, Romney said, it would be "a serious mistake to conclude that the housing problem we face is only the result of the character of the housing programs, their inadequate administration or the unscrupulous activities of speculators and fast-buck artists."

The housing problem, he said, "results from all the social, economic and physical problems affecting our central cities."

Romney testified before the committee in support of his department's $5.25-billion fiscal 1973 budget request.

Although the central-city crisis "has had a massive and negative impact on our federal housing programs," Romney said, from the standpoint of the nation as a whole "we have had a national housing success, not a national failure."

British Labor Party Faces Major Crisis

LONDON (AP) — Three top men quit the labor party's high command Monday night in protest against the twists and turns of Harold Wilson's Common Market policies. It was the worst crisis to hit the Labor party in 20 years.

The three were Roy Jenkins, the deputy party leader; Harold Lever, a financial expert; and George Thomson, Labor's authority on defense.

Shirley Williams, the party's spokeswoman on domestic affairs, said she, too, would quit if the party did not adopt a "more constructive attitude to Britain's membership" in the Common Market.

While in power, Wilson firmly advocated membership. But after the Conservatives ousted Labor in the general election of 1970 and it became apparent from public opinion polls that a majority of the British public opposed joining the European Economic Community, Wilson changed his tune, saying he favored membership in principle but opposed the terms the Conservatives had negotiated.

Jenkins led nearly 90 other Laborites in revolt against Wilson on Oct. 28 when they voted with the government to approve membership in the Common Market in principle. That split was papered over, but the turning of the ways came after Wilson and his supporters in the party leadership decided to join Conservative opponents of Market membership in demanding a referendum on the issue, an idea that suddenly became attractive to them after President George Pompidou announced one in France.

Jenkins accused Wilson of opportunism, in effect siding with those who charged Wilson abandoned his previous support for Common Market membership because he thought the change might put the Laborites back into power.

Kennedy Says Beard Doctor May Face Fraud Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., today asked for a Justice Department explanation of why the Senate Judiciary Committee, looking into Richard G. Kleindienst's nomination to be attorney general, was not informed of a federal investigation of a doctor who submitted testimony to the committee.

Kennedy said Henry Peterson, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, should explain why the probe of Dr. L.M. Radetsky for alleged Medicare fraud was not made known to the committee.

Radetsky was one of Dita D. Beard's cardiologists in Denver when the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. lobbyist was being treated for a heart problem.

IRA Briefs Kennedy

DUBLIN (AP) — The president of Sinn Fein, the political voice of the Irish Republican Army's official wing, said today his organization has been regularly briefing Democratic Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Thomas McGiolla told newsmen, "I do not say he started his propaganda campaign when we got in touch with him, I cannot recall exactly when he spoke out. But we have been making our views known to him."

Kennedy has been a severe critic of Britain's handling of the crisis in Northern Ireland, where the IRA is waging a guerrilla war to unite the province and the Irish Republic.

McGiolla said Irish clubs in New York, Boston and Philadelphia had been supplying Sinn Fein propaganda to Kennedy.

McGiolla said Irish clubs in New York, Boston and Philadelphia had been supplying Sinn Fein propaganda to Kennedy.

The president of Sinn Fein, the political voice of the Irish Republican Army's official wing, said today his organization has been regularly briefing Democratic Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Thomas McGiolla told newsmen, "I do not say he started his propaganda campaign when we got in touch with him, I cannot recall exactly when he spoke out. But we have been making our views known to him."

Kennedy has been a severe critic of Britain's handling of the crisis in Northern Ireland, where the IRA is waging a guerrilla war to unite the province and the Irish Republic.

McGiolla said Irish clubs in New York, Boston and Philadelphia had been supplying Sinn Fein propaganda to Kennedy.

7th Gang Slaying Reported; Police Cautious On Motive

NEW YORK (AP) — Police found the bullet-punctured body of a man in the trunk of an abandoned auto late Monday night after receiving an anonymous tip to check a Brooklyn parking lot "if you're interested in the Joe Gallo case."

It was the seventh gangland style execution in the city in the past two weeks and appeared to add to the growing evidence of underworld turmoil although police say they have not yet found evidence to link any of the killings.

The victim was identified by his fingerprints as Richard Grossman, 36, of Brooklyn. He had been shot in the back of the head and three or four times in the body. His tarpaulin-wrapped body was found in the trunk of a car. Police said he could have been dead as long as a week.

Grossman had been arrested five times since 1957 on charges including rape, burglary, possession of stolen property, grand larceny and forgery, police said.

Detectives went to the parking lot after a mystery male caller telephoned Brooklyn homicide headquarters. He gave his brief message, the address of the lot and hung up before detectives could question him.

Asked if the latest slaying was connected with last Friday's killing of Brooklyn mobster Joseph "Crazy Joe" Gallo, Asst. Dist. Atty. Edward Rapaport, replied, "Who's to say?"

Gallo went to his grave Monday after two more men were found slain in gangland fashion. They were Gennaro Ciprio, 31, a racket-connected restaurateur gunned down outside his Brooklyn business, and Frank Ferraro, 41, a New Jersey laundryman whose 340-pound body was found in a lower Manhattan parking lot.

Deputy Police Commissioner Robert Daley expressed "cautious optimism" during the day that police would solve Gallo's murder but declined to view the recent string of killings as a mob war.

"Perhaps we're getting a rash of Mafia killings, like you get a rash of hijackings or bombings," said Daley, "but there's no indication yet that these guys are related to the Gallo killing."

Apollo Crew Examined

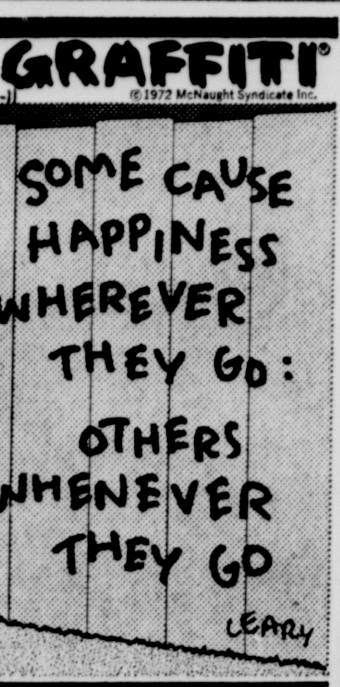

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 16 astronauts receive their final major preflight physicals today and Thomas K. Mattingly hopes that medical lightning doesn't strike twice.

Nearly two years ago, during a similar examination, it was discovered that Mattingly had been exposed to German measles. As a result he lost a seat on the Apollo 13 flight three days before launching. He was replaced by a backup pilot.

Doctors say there's little chance they will find anything wrong today during a four-hour examination of Mattingly, John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr., who are to rocket toward the moon Sunday.

Because of the Apollo 13 incident, all Apollo crews now enter medical isolation three weeks before launch. Since March 27, the astronauts have been confined to three areas of the space center—their crew quarters, the training building and the launch pad.

Only 109 persons are authorized to work directly with them. All, including the space-men, have been immunized against common diseases.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The French Connection," a slambang modern thriller about New York police chasing narcotics smugglers, has won the Oscar race with five Academy awards including best picture of the year.

The star of the film, Gene Hackman, won the best actor award. William Friedkin, the film's director, received the best director Oscar.

Jane Fonda won the gold-plated statuette for best actress as the classy, cynical call girl of "Klute."

Honors for supporting players in Monday night's 44th annual movie academy presentations went to Ben Johnson and Cloris Leachman of "The Last Picture Show."

Johnson played the pool hall movie house-cafe proprietor and central citizen of a small, dusty Texas town. Miss Leachman portrayed the sex-starved, unfaithful wife of the high school football coach.

Named the best foreign-language film was Vittorio De Sica's "The Garden of the Finzi Continis," a story of a rich Jewish family in wartime Italy.

Isaac Hayes won the best song award for his "Theme from Shaft."

The emotional peak for a fiery-spangled audience of 2,900 in the Music Center Pavilion came with the appearance of white-haired Charlie Chaplin to receive an honorary Oscar and a standing, roaring ovation.

"Words are so futile, so feeble," he said in a halting, shallow voice after acknowledging the long ovation with waves, smiles, thrown kisses and slight bows.

"I can only say thank you for the honor of inviting me here. You're wonderful, sweet people."

Master of ceremonies Jack Lemmon handed him a Chaplinesque cane and bowler, the hat falling off his head as Chaplin did a comic gesture with it. The comedian's wife Oona and stars of the show gathered around him as the orchestra played a Chaplin song, "Smile."

Academy President Daniel Taradash had introduced the longtime self-exile from Hollywood.

Chile To Hit U.S. Meddling

ITT Documents Spark Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring U.S. denials of wrongdoing, Chile will formally accuse the United States of attempting to block the election of President Salvador Allende.

Chile's undersecretary for foreign affairs, Anibal Palma, said in an interview Monday that a series of documents attributed to officials of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. offer proof of U.S. interference in violation of Article 18 of the charter of the Organization of American States.

Palma, head of the Chilean delegation to an OAS general assembly meeting which opens today, said he will outline his charges in a speech before the assembly Friday.

The documents, released last month by columnist Jack Anderson, indicate that ITT made repeated efforts to persuade the U.S. government to head off Allende's installation as president in November 1970.

One document alleges that ITT was prepared to assist in sums up to seven figures to prevent Allende's election and thereby salvage the firm's multimillion-dollar business interests in Chile.

The documents indicate there was support from some State Department and Central Intelligence Agency officials for a stop-Allende campaign. Other officials named in the documents are depicted as being flatly opposed to any such campaign.

State Department officials, while acknowledging privately that ITT sought U.S. support to prevent Allende's election, have said publicly that the United States made no attempt to influence Chile's electoral process.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor:

I feel that an explanation is due the law abiding tax payers and citizens of Pickaway County concerning the article in The Herald on April 5th, 1972 in regard to the motorist who had five drunk driving charges since 1968 reduced to reckless operation by Municipal Court Judge Lamb, and also a charge of fleeing a police officer reduced to disobeying a police officer. The judge assessed a fine of fifty dollars and costs on each of these charges.

In addition to the current drunk driving charge to which the motorist pleaded not guilty, and on which he was granted a continuance until April 27th there are still two more drunk driving charges pending in court. From the article in The Herald it would appear that he has been arrested a total of eight times since 1968 for drunken driving, and that he has pleaded not guilty and has never been tried on these charges.

I do not presume to know who is to blame that this potential killer is still allowed to drive on our streets and highways, but surely the Judge, with the slap on the wrist fines, the courts, or possibly the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, or perhaps even our state laws should share the blame.

There is certainly not much of an incentive for a law enforcement officer to risk his life to pursue and to bring into court the drunken driver who is freed by the Judge to continue his drunk driving until he injures or kills one or more innocent persons.

I do not know, or have I ever met this man, (and I certainly hope that I never meet him on the highway when he is behind the wheel of a car), but common sense dictates that this man's record should be reviewed by the proper authorities and steps taken to remove this driver from the streets and highways for life.

Man Injured As Car Hits Electric Pole

A third auto accident in two days on the Hayesville-Adelphi Rd. in Saltcreek Twp. sent a Route 1, Kingston, man to Berger Hospital Monday night.

James E. Collins, 43, was apparently driving his small car east on the Hayesville-Adelphi Rd. and had just passed through the Saltcreek Bridge, when he lost control of the car, driving left of center.

He brought the car back to the paved surface, but drove it off the right side where it crashed into an electric pole.

Collins was treated at Berger Hospital emergency room for a large laceration above his left eye, abrasions to both knees and left arm and shoulder. He was admitted for observation.

The accident occurred 7 p.m. Monday, just west of Route 56. His car sustained complete front end damage.

EPA Unconvinced By Automaker Pleas

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Environmental Protection Agency official says the testimony of two foreign-car manufacturers has not convinced an EPA panel that automakers are supporting development of anti-pollution devices.

George Allen, EPA deputy assistant administrator for general enforcement, made the comment after leading questioning in the first day of hearings on requests that 1975 auto-pollution limits be delayed a year.

Girl Has 4 Functioning Kidneys

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Doctors have found that three-year-old Theresa Johnson is a rarity. She has four functioning kidneys.

The odds are 20,000 to one that a person will have four normally operating kidneys, doctors said.

Dr. George B. Vossilakis, Parma urologist, said the case is rare but not unique.

Theresa's condition was discovered after she developed an infection that spread to one kidney. The infection was cleared up, but she remains in Grace Hospital in Cleveland, where she has been a patient since March 29.

Vassilakis said that in the future the girl's four ureters—the kidney-to-bladder tubes—may be fused into a single pair to lessen the danger of possible blockage.

Other medical sources said it was remarkable that Theresa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Johnson of Cleveland, had not developed kidney problems sooner.

Tax Preparers Mostly Frauds, Connally Says

CHICAGO (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally says a recent survey in the Southeast by his department showed that 97 per cent of tax returns prepared by persons other than the taxpayer were fraudulent.

Connally told the annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters on Monday that perhaps millions of tax returns that might have gone undetected will receive a thorough audit because of what he termed widespread fraud.

"We are going to have to do something about this," he declared. "Forty indictments have been handed down as a result of the investigation we made and we are going to check thousands, perhaps millions of returns we had not intended to check before."

Connally later said the frauds involved were "little things for the most part," such as listing a baby born in January as a dependent for the previous year. He said the survey figures were based on spot checks of more than 400 tax returns.

Musk Oxen Now In Red China

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Milton and Matilda, the musk oxen from the San Francisco Zoo, have arrived in Peking as a gift from the United States to the Communist Chinese, says zoo director Ronald Reuther.

Reuther said Monday he learned of the arrival in a cablegram from Dr. Theodore Reed of the National Zoo in Washington, D.C. Reed departed by jet from Travis Air Force Base on Thursday with the oxen, now the only two of their kind in China.

As part of a swap arranged during President Nixon's recent China visit, the Chinese government is giving the National Zoo two giant pandas.

Flowers Didn't Help

SILVER CITY, N.M. (AP) — A flower shop presents carnation boutonnieres to each member of the Silver High School basketball squad and coaching staff if they qualify for the state tournament. The carnations have been provided the past four years as a good luck omen. Silver lost for the State AAA championship in 1972 by one point.

Anderson Claims Holifield Took $500 Payoff From ITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Columnist Jack Anderson says Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., took $500 from International Telephone & Telegraph at "about the same time that he wrote the Defense Department on behalf of a multimillion-dollar ITT contract approval."

In syndicated columns today, Anderson said Holifield was approached by ITT lobbyist Robert Schmidt after ITT became interested in landing a contract for electronic airfield equipment in 1968.

Schmidt called Holifield's office to let it be known how interested ITT was in the contract," Anderson wrote. "As chairman of the House government operations military subcommittee, Holifield had vast watchdog powers over all defense contracts."

Schmidt suggested a letter to the Defense Department would help ITT, Anderson said, and some weeks later, Schmidt brought a draft of such a letter troop concentrations threatening the provincial capitals of Quang Tri and Hue in the northernmost provinces, Kon Tum City in the central Highlands and An Loc north of Saigon.

The South Vietnamese command claimed that infantry, artillery and air strikes killed another 442 North Vietnamese troops in 10 battles along the approaches to Quang Tri and Hue, which are said to be key objectives of the Communists' 13-day-old offensive. One fight was within a half mile of Quang Tri, which is 19 miles below the DMZ and nine miles below the government's northernmost defense line. Hue is 35 miles southeast of Quang Tri.

A battalion of several hundred U.S. troops from the 196th Infantry Brigade was moved to Phu Bai, eight miles south of Hue, to strengthen U.S. security forces already there. Although the 196th is one of the two U.S. ground combat units left in Vietnam, informed sources said the role of the troops was not to help out the South Vietnamese but to augment a company of other 196th Brigade soldiers who are responsible for the protection of an American communications unit and other facilities there. Eight U.S. destroyers and the cruiser Oklahoma City, the 7th Fleet's flagship, bombarded enemy troop, tank, artillery and mortar positions 10 to 18 miles north of Quang Tri.

In the Saigon area, a lone Viet Cong sapper slipped into a South Vietnamese ammunition dump eight miles east of the capital before dawn and set off an explosive charge. The blast destroyed 25 per cent of the ammunition stores and shook buildings in Saigon. The sapper was killed, and one South Vietnamese soldier was wounded.

Study War Curb Legality

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate votes today on a motion to divert to the Judiciary Committee for a study of its constitutionality a bill that would limit the war making powers of the president.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., who backs the move, says it is not an attempt to kill the bill, but according to the measure's chief sponsor, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., the vote will test "whether we will or will not have legislation in this field."

The bill would allow the president to initiate hostilities without the approval of Congress only to repel or forestall threat of attack or to rescue Americans abroad, and then only for 30 days.

The issue, Javits said Monday, is between those who view the bill as an illegal attempt to amend the Constitution and the 26 sponsors who claim it is not.

Expressing his own opinion that the bill attempted to modify the Constitution to limit the president's authority as commander-in-chief, Hruska said the Judiciary Committee would be required to consult leading constitutional authorities on the subject.

McGovern Backers

Lose Equipment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. George McGovern's California campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination has suffered a $3,000 loss to thieves, spokesmen say.

Campaign workers placed that estimate on seven electric typewriters, a television set and other equipment stolen over the weekend from campaign headquarters here. Police said there was no sign of forced entry, indicating the thieves may have had a key.

Little Girl Leukemia Victim Leaves Love Poem Behind

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Tami Hogan was a bright 9-year-old who always showed her parents her school work. Except one item.

"Thank you for my family,
"We do live quite happily,
"We always play together,
"Oh! Thank you for the sunshine weather,

Iran Quake Death Toll Near 5,000

TEHRAN (AP) — The death toll in the earthquake in Southern Iran headed for the 5,000 mark today, the Pars News Agency of Iran reported.

It said that 963 people were killed in the town of Qeer and that some 4,000 others lost their lives in 44 other villages leveled by the quake.

The Geophysics Institute at Shiraz University reported more than 1,000 tremors had hit the Quake region since the first devastating shock Monday.

"But there is nothing left to be ruined," a spokesman said. It will be a number of days before the final toll is known, relief officials said.

Newsman in Shiraz said the relief work looked like a "full-scale war operation." Helicopters and planes were flying all day dropping food, blankets and medical supplies to stricken areas.

Doctors and medical units were being flown in. Public appeals for blood donors were issued.

The quake hit about 560 miles south of Tehran in an impoverished area of about 20,000 inhabitants. The area is in an earthquake belt and most of the homes are made of mud bricks.

Counterfeit Bill Found At Bank

Another counterfeit $10 bill has shown up in the area and is being checked out by city police.

The phone bill showed up at the Savings Bank and was turned over to the police. This is the 12th one that has turned up in the past two weeks. The back plate is 64 and they have all been 1969 A Series.

Police are also checking the theft of two hubcaps from a car belonging to Chester Iery Jr., 275 Pawnee Drive.

He told police he had parked the car in the General Telephone parking lot Monday while he worked the 4 p.m. to midnight shift. When he came out to get his auto the hubcaps were missing.

Invasion Report Said Correct

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe says a former Marine Corps officer has corroborated the newspaper's report that a U.S. task force was in the Gulf of Tonkin north of the demilitarized zone a year ago prepared to raid a North Vietnamese airfield.

In Washington, the State Department declined comment on the Globe's story on Monday but sources within the department said the Defense Department had denied at congressional hearings that there were plans for such a raid.

In a copyright story Tuesday, the Globe quoted John Webster, 28, of Boston, who was discharged last July after seven years in the Marines as saying that its Monday report was "correct in every way."

Foster Child National Action Week Named

The week of April 9 through 15 has been designated by President Richard M. Nixon as National Action for Foster Children Week.

The program as explained by Dr. Edward F. iger of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is aimed at providing awareness of the community, better treatment of children in foster care, and action.

There are 300,000 children in foster care in the United States. The money for the care of these children is provided by parents, counties, and states.

Bruce Mallott, chairman of the National Association of Foster Parents, stresses the need to improve the quality of foster care and make the community aware of the importance of good foster care. He notes that the community is often inclined to "look down" on foster children.

It is necessary to have good diagnostic casework in order to maintain a child in his own home if at all possible and when this is not possible to find the right home for the child. Foster parents need to be trained to work with children placed in their care as they have often suffered psychological damage by their separation and by multiple placements.

Volunteers to help foster parents are always needed for transportation and for tutoring the school age child.

In Pickaway County, foster care is handled by Children Services, 137½ West Franklin St. At the present time, they are serving 85 children of the county in foster homes.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor:

I feel that an explanation is due the law abiding tax payers and citizens of Pickaway County concerning the article in The Herald on April 5th, 1972 in regard to the motorist who had five drunk driving charges since 1968 reduced to reckless operation by Municipal Court Judge Lamb, and also a charge of fleeing a police officer reduced to disobeying a police officer. The judge assessed a fine of fifty dollars and costs on each of these charges.

In addition to the current drunk driving charge to which the motorist pleaded not guilty, and on which he was granted a continuance until April 27th there are still two more drunk driving charges pending in court. From the article in The Herald it would appear that he has been arrested a total of eight times since 1968 for drunken driving, and that he has pleaded not guilty and has never been tried on these charges.

I do not presume to know who is to blame that this potential killer is still allowed to drive on our streets and highways, but surely the Judge, with the slap on the wrist fines, the courts, or possibly the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, or perhaps even our state laws should share the blame.

There is certainly not much of an incentive for a law enforcement officer to risk his life to pursue and to bring into court the drunken driver who is not tried in court or who is freed by the Judge to continue his drunk driving until he injures or kills one or more innocent persons.

I do not know, or have I ever met this man, (and I certainly hope that I never meet him on the highway when he is behind the wheel of a car), but common sense dictates that this man's record should be reviewed by the proper authorities and steps taken to remove this driver from the streets and highways for life.

Man Injured As Car Hits Electric Pole

A third auto accident in two days on the Hayesville-Adelphi Rd. in Salt Creek Twp. sent a Route 1, Kingston, man to Berger Hospital Monday night. James E. Collins, 43, was apparently driving his small car east on the Hayesville-Adelphi Rd. and had just passed through the Salt Creek Bridge, when he lost control of the car, driving left of center.

He brought the car back to the paved surface, but drove it off the right side where it crashed into an electric pole. Collins was treated at Berger Hospital emergency room for a large laceration above his left eye, abrasions to both knees and left arm and shoulder. He was admitted for observation.

The accident occurred 7 p.m. Monday, just west of Route 56. His car sustained complete front end damage.

EPA Unconvinced By Automaker Pleas

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Environmental Protection Agency official says the testimony of two foreign-car manufacturers has not convinced an EPA panel that automakers are supporting development of anti-pollution devices. George Allen, EPA deputy assistant administrator for general enforcement, made the comment after leading questioning in the first day of hearings on requests that 1975 auto-pollution limits be delayed a year.

Girl Has 4 Functioning Kidneys

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Doctors have found that three-year-old Theresa Johnson is a rarity. She has four functioning kidneys.

The odds are 20,000 to one that a person will have four normally operating kidneys, doctors said.

Dr. George B. Vossilakis, Parma urologist, said the case is rare but not unique.

Theresa's condition was discovered after she developed an infection that spread to one kidney. The infection was cleared up, but she remains in Grace Hospital in Cleveland, where she has been a patient since March 29.

Vassilakis said that in the future the girl's four ureters—the kidney-to-bladder tubes—may be fused into a single pair to lessen the danger of possible blockage.

Other medical sources said it was remarkable that Theresa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Johnson of Cleveland, had not developed kidney problems sooner.

Tax Preparers Mostly Frauds, Connally Says

CHICAGO (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally says a recent survey in the Southeast by his department showed that 97 per cent of tax returns prepared by persons other than the taxpayer were fraudulent.

Connally told the annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters on Monday that perhaps millions of tax returns that might have gone undetected will receive a thorough audit because of what he termed widespread fraud.

"We are going to have to do something about this," he declared. "Forty indictments have been handed down as a result of the investigation we made and we are going to check thousands, perhaps millions of returns we had not intended to check before."

Connally later said the frauds involved were "little things for the most part," such as listing a baby born in January as a dependent for the previous year. He said the survey figures were based on spot checks of more than 400 tax returns.

Musk Oxen Now In Red China

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Milton and Matilda, the musk oxen from the San Francisco Zoo, have arrived in Peking as a gift from the United States to the Communist Chinese, says zoo director Ronald Reuther.

Reuther said Monday he learned of the arrival in a cablegram from Dr. Theodore Reed of the National Zoo in Washington, D.C. Reed departed by jet from Travis Air Force Base on Thursday with the oxen, now the only two of their kind in China.

As part of a swap arranged during President Nixon's recent China visit, the Chinese government is giving the National Zoo two giant pandas.

Flowers Didn't Help

SILVER CITY, N.M. (AP) — A flower shop presents carnation boutonniere to each member of the Silver High School basketball squad and coaching staff if they qualify for the state tournament. The carnations have been provided the past four years as a good luck omen. Silver lost for the State AAA championship in 1972 by one point.

Anderson Claims Holifield Took $500 Payoff From ITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Col.umnist Jack Anderson says Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., took $500 from International Telephone & Telegraph at "about the same time that he wrote the Defense Department on behalf of a multimillion-dollar ITT contract approval." In syndicated columns today, Anderson said Holifield was approached by ITT lobbyist Robert Schmidt after ITT became interested in landing a contract for electronic airfield equipment in 1968.

Schmidt called Holifield's office to let it be known how interested ITT was in the contract," Anderson wrote. "As chairman of the House government operations military subcommittee, Holifield had vast watchdog powers over all defense contracts."

Schmidt suggested a letter to the Defense Department would help ITT, Anderson said, and some weeks later, Schmidt brought a draft of such a letter

troop concentrations threatening the provincial capitals of Quang Tri and Hue in the northernmost provinces, Kon-tum City in the central Highlands and An Loc north of Saigon.

The South Vietnamese command claimed that infantry, artillery and air strikes killed another 442 North Vietnamese troops in 10 battles along the approaches to Quang Tri and Hue, which are said to be key objectives of the Communists' 13-day offensive. One fight was within a half mile of Quang Tri, which is 19 miles below the DMZ and nine miles below the government's northernmost defense line. Hue is 35 miles southeast of Quang Tri.

A battalion of several hundred U.S. troops from the 196th Infantry Brigade was moved today from the Da Nang area to Phu Bai, eight miles south of Hue, to strengthen U.S. security forces already there. Although the 196th is one of the two U.S. ground combat units left in Vietnam, informed sources said the role of the troops was not to help out the South Vietnamese but to augment a company of other 196th Brigade soldiers who are responsible for the protection of an American communications unit and other facilities there.

Eight U.S. destroyers and the cruiser Oklahoma City, the 7th Fleet's flagship, bombarded enemy troop, tank, artillery and mortar positions 10 to 18 miles north of Quang Tri.

In the Saigon area, a lone Viet Cong sapper slipped into a South Vietnamese ammunition dump eight miles east of the capital before dawn and set off an explosive charge. The blast destroyed 25 per cent of the ammunition stores and shook buildings in Saigon. The sapper was killed, and one South Vietnamese soldier was wounded.

Study War Curb Legality

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate votes today on a motion to divert to the Judiciary Committee for a study of its constitutionality a bill that would limit the war making powers of the president.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., who backs the move, says it is not an attempt to kill the bill, but according to the measure's chief sponsor, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., the vote will test "whether we will or will not have legislation in this field."

The bill would allow the president to initiate hostilities without the approval of Congress only to repel or forestall threat of attack or to rescue Americans abroad, and then only for 30 days.

The issue, Javits said Monday, is between those who view the bill as an illegal attempt to amend the Constitution and the 26 sponsors who claim it is not.

Expressing his own opinion that the bill attempted to modify the Constitution to limit the president's authority as commander-in-chief, Hruska said the Judiciary Committee would be required to consult leading constitutional authorities on the subject.

McGovern Backers Lose Equipment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. George McGovern's California campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination has suffered a $3,000 loss to thieves, spokesmen say. Campaign workers placed that estimate on seven electric typewriters, a television set and other equipment stolen over the weekend from campaign headquarters here. Police said there was no sign of forced entry, indicating the thieves may have had a key.

Little Girl Leukemia Victim Leaves Love Poem Behind

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Tami Hogan was a bright 9-year-old who always showed her parents her school work. Except one item.

It was a crayon illustrated poem called "Thank you for life" that she wrote herself. It said:

"Thank you Lord for letting me be alive today,
"I like to try to help in many ways,

"Thank you for my family,
"We do love quite happily,
"We always play together,
"Oh! Thank you for the sunshine weather,

Iran Quake Death Toll Near 5,000

TEHRAN (AP) — The death toll in the earthquake in Southern Iran headed for the 5,000 mark today, the Pars News Agency of Iran reported.

It said that 953 people were killed in the town of Qeer and that some 4,000 others lost their lives in 44 other villages leveled by the quake.

The Geophysics Institute at Shiraz University reported more than 1,000 tremors had hit the Quake region since the first devastating shock Monday.

"But there is nothing left to be ruined," a spokesman said. It will be a number of days before the final toll is known, relief officials said.

Newsmen in Shiraz said the relief work looked like a "full-scale war operation." Helicopters and planes were flying all day dropping food, blankets and medical supplies to stricken areas.

Doctors and medical units were being flown in. Public appeals for blood donors were issued.

The quake hit about 560 miles south of Tehran in an impoverished area of about 20,000 inhabitants. The area is in an earthquake belt and most of the homes are made of mud bricks.

Counterfeit Bill Found At Bank

Another counterfeit $10 bill has shown up in the area and is being checked out by city police.

The phoney bill showed up at the Savings Bank and was turned over to the police.

This is the 12th one that has turned up in the past two weeks. The back plate is 64 and they have all been 1969 A Series.

Police are also checking the theft of two hubcaps from a car belonging to Chester Jery Jr., 275 Pawnee Drive.

He told police he had parked the car in the General Telephone parking lot Monday while he worked the 4 p.m. to midnight shift. When he came out to get his auto the hubcaps were missing.

Invasion Report Said Correct

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe says a former Marine Corps officer has corroborated the newspaper's report that a U.S. task force was in the Gulf of Tonkin north of the demilitarized zone a year ago prepared to raid a North Vietnamese airfield.

In Washington, the State Department declined comment on the Globe's story on Monday but sources within the department said the Defense Department had denied at congressional hearings that there were plans for such a raid.

In a copyright story Tuesday, the Globe quoted John Webster, 28, of Boston, who was discharged last July after seven years in the Marines as saying that its Monday report was "correct in every way."

"It's just wonderful to be alive!"

Tami's father, Gary, a lieutenant with the suburban Carmichael fire department, said he and his wife found the poem the day after his little girl died last Thursday of leukemia.

"My wife looked in a folder, and there was this poem right on top. I wonder if she planned it that way."

Her father said he found out in December, 1970 that Tami had the deadly disease.

"We never told her that she had leukemia because we always hoped she'd become well again," Hogan said. "We just told her it was an infection."

"She was reserved, shy and thoughtful. She was always concerned about everybody else, even at the last. The day she died she asked her mother how she—her mother—was doing."

Tami's teacher, Sister Mary Carton of Our Lady of the Assumption School, said the little girl knew something was wrong. "She said once she wished she could have just one day when she didn't feel sick."

Tami's grandmother, Mrs. Robert Mead, said the youngster "could put herself in your place. She knew more than what you thought she knew about life."

Foster Child National Action Week Named

The week of April 9 through 15 has been designated by President Richard M. Nixon as National Action for Foster Children Week.

The program as explained by Dr. Edward F. Iglar of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is aimed at providing awareness of the community, better treatment of children in foster care, and action.

There are 300,000 children in foster care in the United States. The money for the care of these children is provided by parents, counties, and states.

Bruce Mallott, chairman of the National Association of Foster Parents, stresses the need to improve the quality of foster care and make the community aware of the importance of good foster care. He notes that the community is often inclined to "look down" on foster children.

It is necessary to have good diagnostic casework in order to maintain a child in his own home if at all possible and when this is not possible to find the right home for the child. Foster parents need to be trained to work with children placed in their care as they have often suffered psychological damage by their separation and by multiple placements.

Volunteers to help foster parents are always needed for transportation and for tutoring the school age child.

In Pickaway County, foster care is handled by Children Services, 137 1/2 West Franklin St. At the present time, they are serving 85 children of the county in foster homes.

Rain Postpones First Ball Games

"Rain, rain, go away! Please come back another day." This saying is probably a thought running through the minds of WHS Coach Paul Hoskins and his team of baseball players.

The first game scheduled for the season was to be played at Circleville, March 29. It was postponed until April 4, due to the rainy conditions. April 4th came around and both diamonds were still too wet to be played on. The game with Huntington was also cancelled. It was to be played on April 1.

As soon as the weather is perfect Westfall will be seeing some good baseball games. Good luck, boys.

This was the largest art show ever held at the school. Judges, Mrs. Gloria Snodgrass, Mrs. Audrey Turner, and Mrs. Lisa Yaple, had the difficult problem of choosing between the many exhibits.

In the 2-D class, Bill Blaney received the grand prize with a realistic watercolor of a barn. Other winners were Lesli Fyffe — first, Connie Shaeffer, second, Charlyn Fuller, third, Sherrie Covault, Joyce Stevens, and Teresa Conley, honorable mention.

Charlyn Fuller captured the grand prize in the paper sculpture division with a green frog. Barbara Stonerock received first while Jerri Hensen received second.

In the three-dimensional division, Diane Morrison received the grand prize with a black plaster sculpture. Sherrie Covault received first prize, Tom Eitel, second, and Mike Hegarty, third.

X-Raying The Returns

In elections, such as they are, in most communist countries, what is left unsaid by the voters frequently is more important than the turnout at the polls.

The outcomes are foreordained, but occasionally the voters are given a chance to register a few votes of protest.

It was thus in the recent parliamentary elections held in Poland.

The overwhelming majority voted for party chief Edward Gierek. But the minority vote was sufficiently large to give emphasis to its meaning.

The discontent which has been boiling in Poland for years, and resulted in the overthrow of former party chairman Wladyslaw Gornulka in 1970, has not ended.

It has been somewhat subdued in the last year and a half, indicating the slight reforms have been well received. Gierek made several slight moves away from strict authoritarianism.

That support, however, may be evident only so long as the reforms continue. It will be quite a feat if Gierek can continue to fool the Polish slave of Russia indefinitely.

In Moscow, observers in the Kremlin confides may be having difficulty analyzing the voting in Poland in any way favorable to them.

Analyzing A Genius

Are geniuses born or do they develop? The private papers of Albert Einstein are being made available to scholars and perhaps even published. There is speculation that they may throw some light on the question.

Probably not. It is possible that scholars may be disappointed after having read the personal observations of a man acclaimed as a genius.

Einstein did not talk until he was past his third birthday. Did this have bearing on his remarkable work in the field of applied mathematics later in life?

Geniuses who deal in the abstract or conceptual theories sometimes have difficulty communicating the basic foundations of their ideas. Einstein had difficulty mastering mathematics in school, though his advanced work in the field brought him international acclaim.

His papers certainly are proving interesting. But they no doubt will be more revealing for what they do not say about the making of a genius than any remarkable revelations.

Peculiarities

By JEFFERY HART

As long ago as the 1830's, Alexis de Tocqueville noticed something odd, even eerie about American Presidential elections. As the balloting draws near, both the candidates and the voters tend to become increasingly ideological. The stands they take — the candidates in their speeches and public statements, the citizens in their private discussions and arguments — turn increasingly on abstract principle and have less and less to do with the workaday concerns of the rest of the year. As Tocqueville saw it, the ordinary concerns of life were temporarily "suspended" and the election campaign took place in a kind of fictional world of vast moral issues.

And of course this odd, overheated season is on us again. To George McGovern and his supporters, the Vietnam War is not an intricate political and military event, about which, as they very well know, reasonable men have held a variety of views; no, it is "criminal," and one's affirmation of that judgment is the touchstone of virtue.

McGovern himself has had well-publicized doubts about

"busing" and indeed sends his own children to all-white private schools. But now, in the fictional ideological world of the campaign, he has to affirm the desirability of busing in absolutist tones, and view doubts about it as a kind of moral leprosy.

And so it goes. We hear, always apocalyptically, about poverty, racism, pollution, drugs, inflation, the crisis in education, the rotting cities, corruption in government, inflation and so on. The politicians reaffirm our solemn commitment to the "survival" of Israel, as if Israel were in any imminent danger of not surviving. Even poor Ed Muskie, who is about as ideological as a loaf of bread, finds himself swept into this artificial mood. And Richard Nixon doubtless will soon resurface, his own moralisms and idealisms oddly out of focus and hyperbolic. Being a deeply sceptical and practical individual himself, he finds the correct tone hard to strike.

The saving thing about America so far has been that the ideological frenzy subsides as soon as the voting is over. "As soon as the choice is determined," wrote Tocqueville, "the ardor is dispelled, calm returns, and the river, which had nearly broken its banks, sinks to its usual level; but who can refrain from astonishment that such a storm should have arisen."

The vast majority of citizens return to their diverse and practical concerns, producing food, building, transporting things from one place to another, organizing and bargaining, pursuing education, seeking pleasure, raising children. In the historical perspective, it is the sum of all these activities, converging in a gigantic vector, that determines the nation's course. The feverish moralizations of the Presidential campaign fade from view like wisps of fog at sunrise.

Nevertheless, a substantial intellectual minority actually desires that we be governed according to the rhetoric of Presidential elections, and feels deeply frustrated because we are not. I have been rereading, for example, "The Deadlock of Democracy" by Prof. James MacGregor Burns, the clear message of which is that we are "deadlocked" because Presidents, who have proclaimed various ideal goals during the campaign, are frustrated by an unenlightened Congress when in office. Though it is hard to believe, Burns and many academic liberals appear to think that we should be governed by speech writers, and not by the concrete interests of the country as reflected in Congress.

Birds Lose Out In Newspaper

DOVER, N. H. (AP) — What is a typo? It's when a word that's supposed to be spelled one way turns up in print another way. Like that!

Such was the case when writer Natalie Kelly correctly spelled the names of 50 birds, but as Foster's Daily Democrat said, "this is what we did:

"Turned a great cormorant into a great cornnut; called the horned grebe a hoone grebe; impolitely treated the common goldeneye as a common goldemaye; indiscreetly slandered the surf scoter and the common scoter, calling them the surf seater and common sector; injudiciously maligned the common crackle as the common crackle; and just plain miserably termed the house sparrow the mouse sparrow."

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can engage in those pleasurable activities you like today and derive much happiness from them. Make sure you are with friends and avoid arguments. Go to bed early tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take no risks in handling vocational activities for best results. Improve your credit by paying important bills quickly instead of stalling. Think along right lines.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you are interested in new activities, take the time to study all details. Find those for which you are best suited and wait at least until tomorrow before taking action on them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't be afraid to study new systems that could increase your production at work. Loved one may be in a bad mood in the morning, but by evening all changes for the better. Have patience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make it a point to listen carefully to suggestions of an associate or you may be the loser when benefits are handed out. Be sure to handle an outside duty well. Think logically and all is fine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have fine ideas on how to be more efficient at work, so follow through on them. You can make much progress in this area. Talk the future over with co-workers and gain their confidence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Recreation is fine today, provided you are not extravagant or spend your time with the wrong people. A hobby you have could prove most enjoyable now. Plan future activities tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A promise to a close tie must be kept if you are to have the harmony you want with this important person in your life. Entertain at home tonight. Show that you are a delightful person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can make great progress in your intellectual endeavors, be it writing, or whatever. Change your approach with co-workers and get greater cooperation from them. Be wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You want to be more prosperous, but in your efforts make sure you do so ethically. Obtain advice from clever persons in business. Enthusiasm is the keynote. Relax tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those delightful young people with many fine ideas, but needs to be taught early to study them well before putting them in operation. Your progeny has an excellent mind, so prepare now for higher education. Also, teach early to complete whatever has been started. Sports are fine here. "The Stars impel, they do not

My husband was retired from a job he loved, at the age of 63. This was a company rule.

Suddenly, a happy active man was converted into a miserable one. Why can't companies learn that men in their 60's are vital, and have a right to continue in their occupation?

Mrs. S.R., Conn.

Dear Mrs. R.:

I truly believe that one of the penalties for this highly computerized pattern of living is too-early retirement.

On a given day, a productive human being passes into a fixed arbitrary age group, and is immediately displaced from the work he has enjoyed, and from his creativity. A gold watch, engraved with a few well chosen flattering words, is hardly compensation for the fact that he has been so dislocated.

The use of leisure is a very difficult art to acquire. Unless that art is learned at an early age, time can hang heavily and become a burden.

Work in itself can, for many people, be a happy hobby. A great many people actually enjoy their occupations. I have known people who flourish in anticipation of the next day's work, the leisure that follows it, and the return to the cycle of work again.

When people such as your husband have not adequately prepared themselves for retirement, not only do the added free hours become boring, but there is a restlessness because the customary work is actually missed.

I agree with you completely. Our social growth has not been compatible with our medical accomplishments which make a man in his 60's a very productive human being.

I hope there will be a change in this attitude. The companies and the economy of the nation are deprived of the contribution of many of these people who are still vigorous and can be of important use to the community.

You and your husband must devote yourself to finding new ways of making his additional hours productive and satisfying.

By JOHN CUNNEIFF

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — The sunniest of financial forecasters is always aware of his shadow. He forecasts a boom but fears a bust. He tells clients to buy stock but is tempted to sell himself.

There are two basic reasons for this: First, his awareness of how little he knows about the subject, and second, his awareness of how much he knows about his personal limitations. And so, with the consensus heavily in favor of a continued expansion, some forecasters are keeping a close check on the darker side of things, just in case that shadow grows longer.

There are those, for example, who counter the popular forecast of a continued expansion with the dour observation that no, the economy is going to do little more than plod along. Look, they say, consumers right now are holding billions of dollars away from retailers. They're saving at an 8 per cent rate. They won't spend. And if they won't, how are you going to have expansion?

There's something to the argument. You seldom have much of an economy if the people who make up the economy are just sitting on their wallets. But are they? Or does it appear that way only? Think about it: One of the reasons why people are withholding their money from retailers is because they are spending it through taxes. Private spending might be restrictive, to be sure, but public spending is expansive.

Never before, in fact, has government spent so lavishly. Money is pulsing through the economy. Even if it isn't being spent by consumers directly, but instead through government, the action is occurring.

But that's the point, say those who feel the shadow's ominous presence. With the Nixon administration running deficits of $85 billion in three years this expansion is bound to burn itself out in inflation.

Well, you can't deny that there's a point to consider. The trend is for the public sector, government, to meet the demands of society. And with these demands always rising, can any administration avoid deficits?

But that brings us back to the consumer. If the consumer were spending more heavily, the problem of inflation might be all the greater. As it is, consumer restraint actually is damping inflation. That shadow, rather than being an ominous omen may only be stern conscience.

But no matter how you argue, there are still shadows trailing us. Unemployment, the pessimists say, just isn't going to come down. Look, they argue, it rose last month from 5.7 per cent to 5.9 per cent.

You can't argue with the facts. It does indeed seem absurd now to hope that the jobless rate will be around 4.5 per cent at the end of the year. Like inflation, it seems to have a mind of its own.

But you must also consider that shadow distorts substance. You cannot ignore the fact that 620,000 more people were at work in March than in February, and that the high rate of jobless resulted from labor force growth.

What does the stock market have to say about all this? The consensus is bullish, decidedly so. But there are always ghostly shadows stalking Wall Street especially as greed and speculation infest thinking.

To quote one adviser: "... most common stocks will soon go down ... perhaps way down

..." Interest rates are ging up, he says, and that means money will be drawn from the market. Even now, he says, long-term investors are liquidating.

Moreover, says this source, investors are withdrawing their money from mutual funds, and thus they may force the funds to liquidate assets in order to redeem shares.

And how can you explain why the shadow seems larger to this fellow than to others? You can't, except to say it may be a matter of perspective.

But you can quote him to: "Warning," he shouts. "We may be totally wrong about the market."

Claim U.S. Set Invasion North Of DMZ

BOSTON (AP) — United States Naval and Marine forces were massed about a year ago in the Tonkin Gulf for an airborne invasion in North Vietnam, the Boston Globe reported Monday.

In a copyrighted article, the Globe said a task force of nine ships rehearsed in the Gulf for the planned invasion of a North Vietnamese airfield about 150 miles north of the demilitarized zone (DMZ).

The Pentagon denied the accuracy of the story when it was first reported by a Senate committee last year and denied it to the Globe again one week ago, the paper said.

According to the Globe's account, the invasion, which did not come off, was to be an attack by 300 to 400 Marines, the first military offensive north of the DMZ by Americans in the Indochina war.

The paper quoted three Marines who said they trained for the invasion and who said they were never told why the invasion was cancelled.

"If that statement (the denial) was made by the Pentagon, it's an out and out lie," said former Lt. James E. Roark, 25, who now attends law school at West Virginia University in Morgantown, W. Va.

"As long as people are being killed over there, the American people have the right to know what's going on."

According to Roark, former Lt. William Grant and a Marine officer who wasn't identified, the invasion was to involve helicopter drops of the Marines about five miles inland at a major North Vietnamese air base.

X-Raying The Returns

In elections, such as they are, in most communist countries, what is left unsaid by the voters frequently is more important than the turnout at the polls. The outcomes are foreordained, but occasionally the voters are given a chance to register a few votes of protest. It was thus in the recent parliamentary elections held in Poland. The overwhelming majority voted for party chief Edward Giersek. But the minority vote was sufficiently large to give emphasis to its meaning. The discontent which has been boiling in Poland for years, and resulted in the overthrow of former party chairman Wladyslaw Gomulka in 1970, has not ended. It has been somewhat subdued in the last year and a half, indicating the slight reforms have been well received. Giersek made several slight moves away from strict authoritarianism. That support, however, may be evident only so long as the reforms continue. It will be quite a feat if Giersek can continue to fool the Polish slave of Russia indefinitely. In Moscow, observers in the Kremlin confines may be having difficulty analyzing the voting in Poland in any way favorable to them.

Analyzing A Genius

Are geniuses born or do they develop? The private papers of Albert Einstein are being made available to scholars and perhaps even published. There is speculation that they may throw some light on the question. Probably not. It is possible that scholars may be disappointed after having read the personal observations of a man acclaimed as a genius. Einstein did not talk until he was past his third birthday. Did this have bearing on his remarkable work in the field of applied mathematics later in life? Geniuses who deal in the abstract or conceptual theories sometimes have difficulty communicating the basic foundations of their ideas. Einstein had difficulty mastering mathematics in school, though his advanced work in the field brought him international acclaim. His papers certainly are proving interesting. But they no doubt will be more revealing for what they do not say about the making of a genius than any remarkable revelations.

Peculiarities

By JEFFERY HART

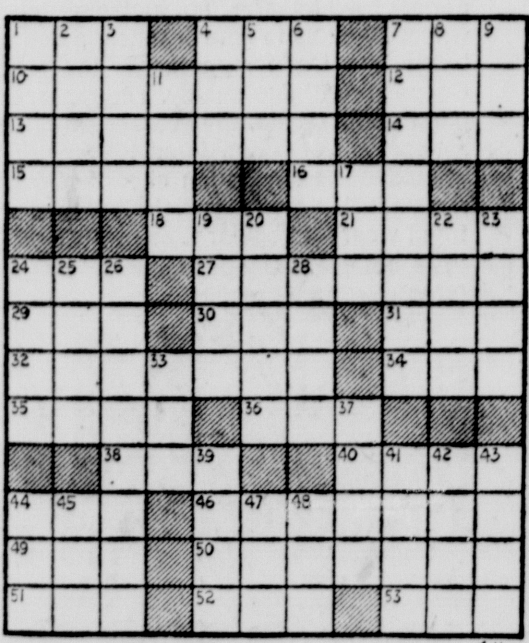

As long ago as the 1830's, Alexis de Tocqueville noticed something odd, even eerie about American Presidential elections. As the balloting draws near, both the candidates and the voters tend to become increasingly ideological. The stands they take — the candidates in their speeches and public statements, the citizens in their private discussions and arguments — turn increasingly on abstract principle and have less and less to do with the workaday concerns of the rest of the year. As Tocqueville saw it, the ordinary concerns of life were temporarily "suspended" and the election campaign took place in a kind of fictional world of vast moral issues. And of course this odd, overheated season is on us again. To George McGovern and his supporters, the Vietnam War is not an intricate political and military event, about which, as they very well know, reasonable men have held a variety of views; no, it is "criminal," and one's affirmation of that judgment is the touchstone of virtue. McGovern himself has had well-publicized doubts about

"busing" and indeed sends his own children to all-white private schools. But now, in the fictional ideological world of the campaign, he has to affirm the desirability of busing in absolutist tones, and view doubts about it as a kind of moral leprosy. And so it goes. We hear, always apocalyptically, about poverty, racism, pollution, drugs, inflation, the crisis in education, the rotting cities, corruption in government, inflation and so on. The politicians reaffirm our solemn commitment to the "survival" of Israel, as if Israel were in any imminent danger of not surviving. Even poor Ed Muskie, who is about as ideological as a loaf of bread, finds himself swept up into this artificial mood. And Richard Nixon doubtless will soon resurface, his own moralisms and idealisms oddly out of focus and hyperbolic. Being a deeply sceptical and practical individual himself, he finds the correct note hard to strike. The saving thing about America so far has been that the ideological frenzy subsides as soon as the voting is over. "As soon as the choice is determined," wrote Tocqueville, "the ardor is dispelled, calm returns, and the river, which had nearly broken its banks, sinks to its usual level; but who can refrain from astonishment that such a storm should have arisen." The vast majority of citizens return to their diverse and practical concerns, producing food, building, transporting things from one place to another, organizing and bargaining, pursuing education, seeking pleasure, raising children. In the historical perspective, it is the sum of all these activities, converging in a gigantic vector, that determines the nation's course. The feverish moralizations of the Presidential campaign fade from view like wisps of fog at sunrise. Nevertheless, a substantial intellectual minority actually desires that we be governed according to the rhetoric of Presidential elections, and feels deeply frustrated because we are not. I have been rereading, for example, "The Deadlock of Democracy" by Prof. James MacGregor Burns, the clear message of which is that we are "deadlocked" because Presidents, who have proclaimed various ideal goals during the campaign, are frustrated by an unenlightened Congress when in office. Though it is hard to believe, Burns and many academic liberals appear to think that we should be governed by speech writers, and not by the concrete interests of the country as reflected in Congress.

Birds Lose Out In Newspaper

DOVER, N. H. (AP) — What is a typo? It's when a word that's supposed to be spelled one way turns up in print another way. Like that!

Such was the case when writer Natalie Kelly correctly spelled the names of 50 birds, but as Foster's Daily Democrat said, "this is what we did:

"Turned a great cormorant into a great cornert; called the horned grebe a hoone grebe; impolitely treated the common goldeneye as a common goldamey; indiscreetly slandered the surf scoter and the common scoter, calling them the surf seater and common seater; injudiciously maligned the common grackle as the common crackle; and just plain miserably termed the house sparrow the mouse sparrow."

Gilligan's Ohio Reform Plan Dead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. John Gilligan has written off hopes of getting his government reorganization bill through the Republican-dominated General Assembly this session.

Gilligan's office, in a memorandum to minority Democrats, said: "Bill is dead, leadership opposed. No request for hearing."

The bill, introduced by Sen. William Bowen, D-9 Cincinnati, would have given the governor authority to reorganize the executive branch subject to a veto by the legislature.

Gilligan has repeatedly asked for the same chance to streamline his own department that Congress gives to the President.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore Gray, R-3 Piqua, said many GOP lawmakers viewed the measure as a "riper bill."

Gilligan two weeks ago shifted his plea to the Ohio Constitution Revision Commission. They could submit the suggestion to the Legislature in the form of a constitutional amendment to go before the voters.

The governor said nobody knows how the executive branch fits together. "and of course, it doesn't."

Ohio has 23 departments, 87 bureaus and agencies and 161 boards and commissions.

Views On TV - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The producers of the annual Oscar awards show seem finally to have gotten a saddle onto that wild and unwieldy television event. It jogged along leisurely on NBC Monday night, still far too long but interesting most of the time.

There was the usual turn-out of stars, on stage and in the audience. There were interludes of entertainment with some extremely elaborate production values. The thank-you speeches were uniformly short. The masters (three) and mistress of ceremony were, for the most part, witty and brief.

On the debit side, those cue-card exchanges between the celebrity presenters of awards were as dull and dreary as ever, and considerable time was wasted showing film clips.

The top awards, as usual, came at the end of the evening, and they all seemed popular with the Hollywood audience. It was, however, the appearance of Charlie Chaplin on stage that was the moving climax of the evening. He appeared to receive a special award, and the audience gave him a long standing ovation.

All in all, it was a superior awards show.

Bob Hope's hour, which preceded the awards show, was expressly designed to lead into the Oscars. Hope studied the show with his standard complaints about not being nominated, and his monologue went smoothly as did musical numbers by Shirley Jones and Barbara Mac Nair.

There was some rather self-conscious dialogue with guest Ingrid Bergman but the real trouble was, as usual, in the sketches. After auspicious starts, each one got bogged down with a mass of one-line gags or moved into exaggerated, unfunny areas.

ABC filled that empty Monday night hour that precedes its film feature with a magazine type program called "Monday Night Sports," a combination of live and taped features which had a hurried look about it.

The live part of the program was primarily devoted to an update on the baseball strike situation, complete with an assortment of interviews on both sides. There was also a feature on the daily life of Bobby Lee Hunter, a promising amateur boxer who will be into the Olympics—and is serving an 18-year sentence for manslaughter.

Dear Abby:

Wife Wants Bigger Diamond

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married 28 years ago, he gave me the smallest diamond I had ever seen. I was glad to get any sized diamond at the time, but as the years passed, my husband became more prosperous and I kept hoping he would replace it with a larger one. He never did.

On my 25th wedding anniversary I gave him a fine piece of jewelry which I saved for out of my household allowance. He gave me 25 roses! Soon after, I lost the diamond out of my little ring. My husband promised to buy me another one, but he didn't. If we passed a jewelry store, I stop and look in the window, but my husband would walk away.

Last Christmas my husband put a tiny box under the tree. When I opened it I found my old ring with the tiny diamond replaced! I tried to put it on my finger, but I had gained some weight and it wouldn't fit. I put it back in the box and it hasn't been out since.

What do I do? Go to work and earn enough money to buy myself a nice diamond ring? Make my little ring larger and wear it?

My husband could well afford to buy me a bigger diamond and I feel so shabby and insecure in the presence of my friends who have such lovely jewelry.

DEAR FIFTY: Face it. Your husband is not likely to buy you a bigger diamond unless you ask him to. If it's that important to you and he can afford it, ask him. Besides, diamonds are not only a girl's best friend, they're also a good investment!

DEAR ABBY: My wife has presented me with a problem and I want your opinion before I make a decision on the matter. We have two children (both girls) and I want a son. My wife has said that two children are all she wants, then she went ahead and had one of those ultra-uterine devices installed without my knowledge. She surprised me with the information several months later.

The reason I am so upset is actually because she did it without my knowledge. I am thinking of leaving her, but am not sure that is the correct solution to this problem. What is your opinion?

DEAR ANGRY: Your wife did inform you of her decision NOT to have any more children. Her method of preventing further pregnancies seems to me a personal matter, since it's her body. If you are thinking of "leaving her" for this reason, think harder. There must be a better reason.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a policeman, and he's one of the best. Although he is required to work 8 hours a day, he averages 10 to 12 hours a day.

My problem? My husband has no time to relax. When he is home someone is always coming about the "law." And when he's not talking to someone who calls to talk to him about a matter having to do with his job. He never gets any rest.

The police department will not allow us to have a private telephone number. The only way we can get any rest or privacy is to leave the house.

Abby, will you please tell readers to go to the station and talk to someone who is on duty? A policeman earns his time off, and he sure needs it.

POLICEMAN'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Consider it done.

Gilligan's Ohio Reform Plan Dead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. John Gilligan has written off hopes of getting his government reorganization bill through the Republican-dominated General Assembly this session.

Gilligan's office, in a memorandum to minority Democrats, said:

"Bill is dead, leadership opposed. No request for hearing." The bill, introduced by Sen. William Bowen, D-9 Cincinnati, would have given the governor authority to reorganize the executive branch subject to a veto by the legislature.

Gilligan has repeatedly asked for the same chance to streamline his own department that Congress gives to the President.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore Gray, R-3 Piqua, said many GOP lawmakers viewed the measure as a "riper bill."

Gilligan two weeks ago shifted his plea to the Ohio Constitution Revision Commission. They could submit the suggestion to the Legislature in the form of a constitutional amendment to go before the voters.

The governor said nobody knows how the executive branch fits together. "and of course, it doesn't."

Ohio has 23 departments, 87 bureaus and agencies and 161 boards and commissions.

NEW YORK (AP) — The producers of the annual Oscar awards show seem finally to have gotten a saddle onto that wild and unwieldy television event. It jogged along leisurely on NBC Monday night, still far too long but interesting most of the time.

There was the usual turn-out of stars, on stage and in the audience. There were interludes of entertainment with some extremely elaborate production values. The thank-you speeches were uniformly short. The masters (three) and mistress of ceremony were, for the most part, witty and brief.

On the debit side, those cue-card exchanges between the celebrity presenters of awards were as dull and dreary as ever, and considerable time was wasted showing film clips.

Circleville, Ohio

Dr. W. Lloyd Sprouse Speaker For Garden Club

A dinner meeting was held Friday evening at the Wardell Party Home by Circleville Garden Club with 17 members and one guest attending.

Miss Elizabeth Tolbert, president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Charles Neff reported that the meeting of the Spring Flower Show, sponsored by the Pickaway County Council of Garden Clubs will be Thursday, May 25th. The all day meeting will be in the Service Center of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church and luncheon will be served by ladies of the church.

Mrs. Donald Watt, Flower Show chairman, said the club would be responsible for the tables and five arrangements for the Flower Show. Club members were asked to contribute material for the sales table.

Invitations were read for the Dogwood Festival, April 23rd at Piketon and for the 130th birthday celebration for General Ulysses S. Grant at Georgetown on April 27-30.

It was also announced the Spring Regional Meeting of Region 9, Ohio Association of Garden Clubs, Inc., will be Wednesday, May 3rd at the Ramada Inn, South, Grove City. Mrs. Charles Neff will be the delegate for the club. Reservations must be in by April 26th.

A bus trip to Shaker Village, Lexington and Berea, Ky., will be June 6th. Interested persons should make reservations with Mrs. Elzie Brooks as soon as possible.

Dr. W. L. Sprouse, speaker for the evening, used as his subject "Flowers Of The Bible."

Dr. Sprouse said he became interested in this subject after a telephone call asking him the number of different flowers mentioned in the Bible. He found no written accounts were available of early Bible days until the 17th century. In the Bible today flowers are mentioned in the Old and New Testaments and in the Apocrypha. Many of the early writings about plants were lists of those used for medicinal and artistic purposes. Today, in Palestine there are about 2,000 different plants. Five hundred of these were introduced there by the English, Americans and others.

Few of the flowers named in the Bible are the same as we know them. The lily may be the anemone, narcissus, tulip, iris or crocus. The rose may also be the oleander, Phoenician rose, marjoram or rock rose. The rose of Sharon is not the shrub we know today. The mustard plant grew much more luxuriantly and the flowers were larger than ours. The apple in the Garden of Eden was perhaps a fig or a quince.

Many of the flowers were grown for special purposes. The seed of the nutmeg plant, which grows wild in Palestine, was used in baking and on meats. Figs were grown for fruit and medicinal purposes and almonds were valuable for oil. Flax, the oldest of the fiber plants, was used in making fine linen cloth for the Priest's robes and for wrapping the body after death. The seed of this plant was also used for medicinal purposes. Saffron and perfume were made from the crocus.

Many of these plants have legends. Dr. Sprouse told the one about the redoubt tree. It is said that the tree was so ashamed when Judas chose it to hang himself that the flowers turned a bright red.

Another legend told about a thorn tree that was entwined with mistletoe. When the bright rays of the sun shone on the bright red flowers it looked as if it were on fire. It was known then as the burning bush.

The pomegranate tree was cultivated in the Holy Land not only for its beautiful flowers but the fruit was considered sacred. Legend tells us that it is the sign of fertility.

The program was ended with Miss Tolbert reading an article entitled "Flower Power."

Garden Club Has Program On Dahlias

Mrs. Leewood Bushee was guest speaker for the Friday meeting of Soliqua Garden Club at Robtown Parish Hall attended by 17 members.

President, Mrs. Clyde Herron, opened the meeting with the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America. Mrs. Henry Hansen read the poem "Kingdom, Power And Glory" for devotions and the "Lord's Prayer" was repeated. Poems were read by Mrs. Georgia Hott and Mrs. Herron.

Cards of appreciation were read from members, Mrs. Cecil Ward and Mrs. Russell Perrill.

Mrs. Herron explained in detail the regional meeting scheduled for May 3rd at Romadina Inn, near Grove City.

Mrs. Bushee showed pictures of her dahlia garden. She and Mr. Bushee plant over 900 roots. Mrs. Bushee's favorite flower is the Arthur Godfrey Dahlia.

LBJ Pushes For Return To Texas

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, recovering from a heart attack he suffered last Friday, continues to pressure his doctors to let him return to Texas.

Dr. Richard S. Crampton, head of the University of Virginia Hospital cardiac care unit, issued two brief statements Monday saying Johnson was improving and was in good spirits.

The former president was stricken while visiting the nearby home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robb.

Although Johnson said he was anxious to be transferred to a hospital in Texas, Dr. John Willis Hurst, the heart specialist on the case, indicated it would be some time before the former president could be moved.

Hurst left Sunday for his home in Atlanta but indicated Johnson would not be moved until he returns to examine him.

Johnson slept late Monday, then spent the day visiting with his wife, Lady Bird, and daughter, Linda Robb, in his hospital room.

Bankruptcy Suit Figures Deny Knowledge Of Action

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Four of six Indiana investors who allegedly were used to force two multi-million dollar trusts into bankruptcy court say they never knowingly authorized the action, the Dayton Journal Herald said today.

The trusts were the American National and the Republic National, separate firms managed by the same officers, the newspaper said.

Putting the cases in the U. S. District Court in Indianapolis in bankruptcy action, the paper said, successfully kept investors from getting their money back.

The story of the Kokomo, Ind., trusts was the second in a series of copyright articles dealing with the possibility that assets of some financially-troubled firms have been siphoned off over the years by a conspiracy.

In the article by Keith McKnight and Andrew Alexander, the newspaper said some of the petitioners for bankruptcy said they had never heard of one of the attorneys supposed to be representing them.

The attorneys, the story said, were Hugh A. Thornburg and Alan I. Klineaman.

On Feb. 13, 1968, the two attorneys asked the court to approve involuntary bankruptcy against American National Trust. On Feb. 26, 1968, they asked the same action against Republic.

Harry R. Fawcett of Kokomo, president of both trusts, assailed the actions in lawsuits as a conspiracy to seize and plunder the trusts through bankruptcy. His lawsuits were dismissed.

The investors who brought the trusts into bankruptcy court were Robert E. McKillip, Mrs. Ruth Quinn Meyers, Roy M. Dean, James D. McKillip, Frank V. Bezi and John Richards.

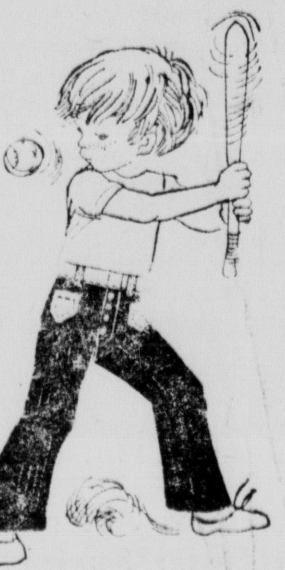

Murder Conviction To Be Appealed

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys for a 46-year-old Canton man found guilty of first-degree murder by a Stark County Common Pleas Court jury say they'll appeal the verdict.

Judge John Gwinn delayed sentencing M. T. James in light of the attorneys' actions. The jury handed down the verdict Monday, recommending mercy and sparing James from the death penalty.

The charges stemmed from the shooting death of John Belford, 53, of Canton, last Oct. 31. James testified during his trial that he shot Belford in a Canton tavern in self-defense.

LBJ Pushes For Return To Texas

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, recovering from a heart attack he suffered last Friday, continues to pressure his doctors to let him return to Texas.

Dr. Richard S. Crampton, head of the University of Virginia Hospital cardiac care unit, issued two brief statements Monday saying Johnson was improving and was in good spirits.

The former president was stricken while visiting the nearby home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robb.

Although Johnson said he was anxious to be transferred to a hospital in Texas, Dr. John Willis Hurst, the heart specialist on the case, indicated it would be some time before the former president could be moved.

Hurst left Sunday for his home in Atlanta but indicated Johnson would not be moved until he returns to examine him.

Johnson slept late Monday, then spent the day visiting with his wife, Lady Bird, and daughter, Linda Robb, in his hospital room.

Bankruptcy Suit Figures Deny Knowledge Of Action

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Four of six Indiana investors who allegedly were used to force two multi-million dollar trusts into bankruptcy court say they never knowingly authorized the action, the Dayton Journal Herald said today.

The trusts were the American National and the Republic National, separate firms managed by the same officers, the newspaper said.

Putting the cases in the U. S. District Court in Indianapolis in bankruptcy action, the paper said, successfully kept investors from getting their money back.

The story of the Kokomo, Ind., trusts was the second in a series of copyright articles dealing with the possibility that assets of some financially-troubled firms have been siphoned off over the years by a conspiracy.

In the article by Keith McKnight and Andrew Alexander, the newspaper said some of the petitioners for bankruptcy said they had never heard of one of the attorneys supposed to be representing them.

The attorneys, the story said, were Hugh A. Thornburg and Alan I. Klineham.

On Feb. 13, 1968, the two attorneys asked the court to approve involuntary bankruptcy against American National Trust. On Feb. 26, 1968, they asked the same action against Republic.

Harry R. Fawcett of Kokomo, president of both trusts, assailed the actions in lawsuits as a conspiracy to seize and plunder the trusts through bankruptcy. His lawsuits were dismissed.

The investors who brought the trusts into bankruptcy court were Robert E. McKillip, Mrs. Ruth Quinn Meyers, Roy M. Dean, James D. McKillip, Frank V. Bezi and John Richards.

Richards is dead and the newspaper said it couldn't locate Bezi. The other four were all quoted as saying they had no knowledge of the bankruptcy action.

Claim ITT Guaranteed Half Of GOP Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., said Monday the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. guaranteed to underwrite half the $800,000 which San Diego had to commit to obtain next summer's Republican National Convention, but the ITT figure was lowered two months later.

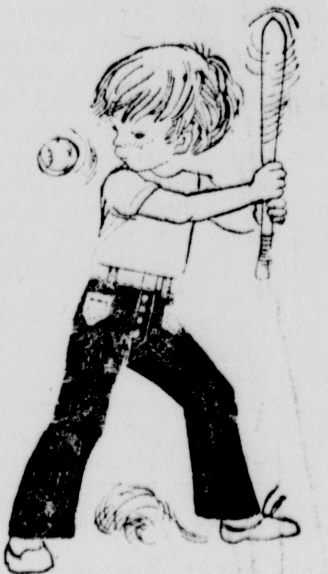

Wilson, the key figure in bringing the convention to his home city, told the Senate Judiciary Committee that ITT's commitment was just a working figure and that he had assured Harold S. Geneen, ITT president, "we could soon work the underwriting down to a reasonable figure as far as Sheraton's (an ITT subsidiary) obligation was concerned."

Weights And Measures Seminar Scheduled In May

The Ohio Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the National Bureau of Standards, will be holding a three day seminar in Weights and Measures supervision May 16, 17, and 18.

Gene R. Abercrombie, director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, in making the announcement said the Seminar will be held at the Holiday Inn in Reynoldsburg.

Director Abercrombie, said the seminar is mandatory by law and is in keeping with Governor John Gilligan's concern for consumer protection and information for all Ohioans. Abercrombie said the session is designed for all parties affected by Weights and Measures enforcement and it has three objectives: To bring about a broader understanding of weights and measures laws, regulations, methods, and procedures; to set forth clearly the responsibilities of both enforcement agencies and the private sector in this vital area of consumer protection; and to provide an open forum between government and industry representatives.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AP) — Tourists enjoying a sunny day found their attention diverted from the grandeur of the cataracts Sunday.

An unoccupied car, parked near the Horseshoe Falls, turned its light on. Then the lenses shattered.

Then the horn began to blow. The engine started.

The car burst into flames and the windshield exploded.

Firemen blamed the activity on a short-circuit.

Roger E. Bowers, Circleville, chief of the Division of Weights and Measures, who is in charge of the three day meeting, said he expected over three hundred participants in the training and discussion sessions. Topics covering packaging and labeling will be heard May 16, weighing May 17 and measuring May 18, according to Bowers. Weights and Measures officials, packagers and labelers, and weighing and measuring device sales and service men are expected to be attending the statewide meeting.

Error By Paulding Paper Could Kill Lottery Measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The fact the Paulding Progress, the only newspaper in Paulding County, didn't advertise the lottery issue in its weekly edition

Motorists Ignore Fight Against Death

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — John Renfrow, 13, stood along Interstate 80 in western Iowa, waving frantically in an effort to stop passing cars. A few feet away, his father worked in vain to save his mother's life.

"I had the car's four-way flashers on. John was crying and waving his arms. I was giving my wife artificial respiration on the shoulder of the road. Anyone could see it wasn't a setup for a robbery," Renfrow said Monday.

The family was returning Sunday from a visit to relatives in Perry, Iowa, when Mrs. Renfrow "quivered and slumped forward" in her seat, her husband said.

She had undergone four operations in the last two years, including removal of both kidneys.

After several minutes, Renfrow reported, a car stopped.

"The man drove in to get a rescue squad but it was too late," Renfrow said.

His wife was pronounced dead when a physician and a fire department rescue squad arrived.

Renfrow said he didn't know why the passing motorists ignored them. Both lanes were crowded. "It seemed like bumper to bumper," Renfrow explained.

"People passed us by like we were weeds."

Beef Price Investigation Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hot potato of who's to blame for rising beef prices landed first in the hands of cattlemen who quickly passed it to grocers who in turn tossed it to government statisticians.

That was the sequence Monday at the opening session of a House Agriculture subcommittee hearing on beef costs. Testimony continues today.

Spokesmen for farmers organizations insisted that current prices for beef on the hoof are not high at all and suggested that the blame falls at some point farther along in the marketing process.

But the head of the National Association of Food Chains resisted the notion and pointed an accusing finger at government statisticians.

Association President Clarence Adams said current increases merely reflect short-term fluctuations in supply and demand, rather than any inflationary trend.

He asserted that the government uses faulty methods to measure food prices nationally.

Both Adams and the farm spokesmen turned aside suggestions that their constituencies should come under strict federal economic controls.

March 29 could provide some legal headaches for lottery backers.

State law requires that any constitutional amendment proposal be advertised for five consecutive weeks in newspapers "of general circulation" in each of the 88 counties.

The proposal to lift Ohio's ban against lotteries is planned for a May 2 vote. There is no way, however, the newspaper can now advertise the plan for five weeks.

Ohio Methodists, chief opponent of the issue, contend they may use the newspaper's failure to advertise the proposal as a court test.

William Doan, general manager of the Progress, said the legal advertisement intended for the paper mistakenly was printed in the Delphos Herald, which publishes both papers.

Doan said he advised the office of Atty. Gen. William Brown of the oversight. "They advised us to go ahead and publish the notice for the remaining four weeks and hope nobody notices," he said.

Doan suggested the haste to be certain a second proposed constitutional amendment was published could have caused the lapse on the first.

That proposal calls for 14 constitutional revisions, including one that would have the governor and lieutenant governor candidates running as a team.

"We were zeroing in on getting that second amendment into print and along the way one of the girls in the composing room evidently put the lottery amendment notice aside," Doan said.

Secretary of State Ted Brown said a court could find there was substantial compliance with the law to properly advertise the issue.

OEA Leader Faces Charges Of Indecency

CINCINNATI (AP)—The president of the powerful Ohio Education Association was scheduled to appear Wednesday in Hamilton County Municipal Court on a charge of indecent behavior.

Police said Leonard Arcilesi, 43, who is also assistant principal at Cincinnati Peoples Junior High School, was arrested Friday night in a rest room in Eden Park. George Baker, 42, also of Cincinnati, an accountant, was also charged.

Arcilesi was scheduled to take office July 1, 1972 as head of the OEA.

William Henry, spokesman for the OEO in Columbus said there would be no comment until an investigation is completed.

Annual Cancer Crusade Is On

This is the time of the year when our friends and neighbors take part in the annual Crusade of the American Cancer Society.

The grim prospects are that 52,000,000 Americans now living will develop cancer. For this reason the Crusade of the Society becomes everybody's concern — to raise more money and to strengthen its vital programs to save more lives now.

Recognizing the nation's will to conquer cancer, the Society is broadening and intensifying its support of research and its programs of rehabilitation and service to cancer patients. Unless important breakthroughs are made soon, 34,000,000 Americans now living will die of this disease.

The Society has long been the voluntary leader in this fight. Among its nationwide efforts is a program to persuade every woman in America to have a Pap test for uterine cancer by 1976. Riding on the success of this program alone, are the lives of thousands.

The American Cancer Society needs and deserves our support. After all, they are there when we need them.

Ministers Choir To Sing

The Ministers Choir of the West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church will be presented in concert on Friday at 8 in the First United Methodist Church of Mt. Sterling.

This choir of 35 ordained clergy, all serving churches of the West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church, is the only known ministers choir in the world. Dr. William Osborne, Director of Choral Music and University Organist at Denison University, is the director.

The choir will be competing in the Eisteddfod (International Music Festival) at Llangollen, North Wales, following which they will present concerts in England, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, East and West Germany and Belgium. One of the highlights of the tour will be the concert in the Cathedral at Cologne, Germany.

Medical Cost Rise Blamed On Lawsuits

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The president-elect of the American Medical Association says a major factor in rising medical costs is the professional liability insurance doctors must have to guard against malpractice suits.

Dr. C. A. Hoffman of Huntington, W. Va., suggested Sunday that a plan similar to the "no fault" automobile insurance system would be one solution to the problem.

Top Crime-Fighting Agency Said Riddled With Waste

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee has described the government's top federal-state crime fighting program as riddled with "inefficiency, waste, maladministration, and, in some cases, corruption."

And, the program—which has sent nearly $1.5 billion to states to upgrade law enforcement—"has had no visible impact on the incidence of crime in the United States," the subcommittee concluded.

Set up under the Safe Streets Act of 1968, LEAA received $698.9 million from Congress for the current fiscal year, most of which was passed on to the states in block grants.

State law-enforcement planning agencies are supposed to distribute most of that money to communities for projects designed to upgrade operations of police, courts and corrections systems.

"Considerably less than 25 per cent of the action-grant funds disbursed to subgrantees has been used to fight crime," the report said. "Large amounts of action funds disbursements to local governments lie idle in local banks or in side-investments. LEAA cannot supply information on the amounts which local governments have actually spent to fight crime."

The subcommittee said the effectiveness of LEAA's block grants had been diminished by the following factors:

- "Diversion of funds for political purposes;
- "Waste of funds on exorbitant consultant fees;
- "Expenditure of excessive amounts for equipment, often without proper bidding procedures;
- "Diversion of funds from the direct needs of the criminal-justice system to areas of social action which are eligible for funding under other federal programs;
- "Inability on the part of grantees to absorb block grant funds promptly."

In addition, the report said, LEAA "has failed to develop standards for measuring and evaluating the effectiveness of its block-grant program."

Since 1945 the American Cancer Society has spent more than $250-million to support cancer research. Many gains have been made. There are still many leads to follow. "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime. Your dollars will help," the ACS says.

Take Driver Licenses Being Sold In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thousands of Ohio driver's licenses are being sold on the black market at prices ranging from $15 to $25 each, an Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles officials says.

E.A. Whiteaker, an administrative assistant in the bureau, said 22,885 blank licenses—many of them in deputy registrar's offices — were stolen in 1971.

Others he said are being counterfeited.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The president-elect of the American Medical Association says a major factor in rising medical costs is the professional liability insurance doctors must have to guard against malpractice suits.

Dr. C. A. Hoffman of Huntington, W. Va., suggested Sunday that a plan similar to the "no fault" automobile insurance system would be one solution to the problem.

Top Crime-Fighting Agency Said Riddled With Waste

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee has described the government's top federal-state crime fighting program as riddled with "inefficiency, waste, maladministration, and, in some cases, corruption."

And, the program—which has sent nearly $1.5 billion to states to upgrade law enforcement—"has had no visible impact on the incidence of crime in the United States," the subcommittee concluded.

Set up under the Safe Streets Act of 1968, LEAA received $698.9 million from Congress for the current fiscal year, most of which was passed on to the states in block grants. State law-enforcement planning agencies are supposed to distribute most of that money to communities for projects designed to upgrade operations of police, courts and corrections systems.

"Considerably less than 25 per cent of the action-grant funds disbursed to subgrantees has been used to fight crime," the report said. "Large amounts of action funds disbursements to local governments lie idle in local banks or in side-investments. LEAA cannot supply information on the amounts which local governments have actually spent to fight crime."

The subcommittee said the effectiveness of LEAA's block grants had been diminished by the following factors:

- "Diversion of funds for political purposes;
- "Waste of funds on exorbitant consultant fees;
- "Expenditure of excessive amounts for equipment, often without proper bidding procedures;
- "Diversion of funds from the direct needs of the criminal-justice system to areas of social action which are eligible for funding under other federal programs;
- "Inability on the part of grantees to absorb block grant

funds promptly."

In addition, the report said, LEAA "has failed to develop standards for measuring and evaluating the effectiveness of its block-grant program."

Since 1945 the American Cancer Society has spent more than $250-million to support cancer research. Many gains have been made. There are still many leads to follow. "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime. Your dollars will help," the ACS says.

Blank Driver Licenses Being Sold In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thousands of Ohio driver's licenses are being sold on the black market at prices ranging from $15 to $25 each, an Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles officials says.

E.A. Whiteaker, an administrative assistant in the bureau, said 22,885 blank licenses—many of them in deputy registrar's offices — were stolen in 1971.

Others he said are being counterfeited.

Big 5th Inning Wins Contest

Circleville Power Rips Washington Lions, 9-2

Circleville exploded for five big runs in the fifth inning to break a tie game wide open and gain a 9-2 decision over Washington C. H. Monday on the Tigers' home grounds.

Big Don Valentine opened on the hill for the Red and Black and garnered his second straight win.

The Circleville fireballer went five and one-third innings with Greg Hoskins coming on in relief in the sixth frame.

Valentine gave up two unearned runs, four hits, walked three and sent seven Lions down swinging.

HOSKINS failed to give up a base on balls or a hit while he whiffed four batters in his short stint on the mound.

Holbert, Wallace and Johnson shared mound duties for the Blue Lions. They were rapped for 10 hits, walked three and fanned three in the contest.

Westfall Belts Bishop Flaget

The big bats of the Mustangs were at it again Monday as Westfall trounced Bishop Flaget, 9-4, on the latter's diamond.

The Mustangs picked up 12 hits in the contest to maintain their power attack.

Scott Riddle led the attack with a home run and two singles, Larry Adams ripped a triple and single, John Valone had a pair of one-baggers, Mike Peterson added two singles, Dave Shannon cracked a triple, Larry Harris rapped a double and Ted Musselman added a one-bagger.

Pro Golfer Howie Johnson Can't Satisfy Young Fan

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Veteran Howie Johnson was telling about the time he was approached for an autograph by a sub-teen boy and Howie signed it: "Ben Hogan."

"The boy went back to his dad and said, 'Hey, look, I got Ben Hogan's autograph.' His old man looked me over and said, 'Now, that's not Ben Hogan. He's too big to be Hogan.'"

"So the boy comes back to me and I tell him, 'Okay, I'll sign my real name.' So I wrote 'Sam Snead.'"

"Back to his dad goes the boy. 'Now,' said the old man, 'He's not old enough to be Snead.'"

"The boy comes back to me again. I tell him, 'Okay, this time I'll really sign my right named a vicious line drive off the Blue Lion hurler's chest and his throw pulled the first baseman off the bag, allowing England the base. He later scored the Tiger's second run.

The Tigers opened the scoring in the first inning when Tom Taylor singled, went to second on a wild pitch and scampered home with the lead run when Paul England rapped a one-bagger.

Both teams were scoreless in the second and third innings but the Tigers plated another marker in the fourth frame.

England was safe on an error, Rock Davis smashed a two-bagger, sending England to third where he scored on an infield out by Mike Speakman.

A pair of singles, two errors, a walk and a sacrifice fly gave the Blue Lions a pair of runs in the top of the fifth and a tie ball game.

However, the rampaging Tigers poured it on in the bottom of the fifth when they erupted for five runs and the game.

FLAGET hurlers gave up six walks and struckout five.

Westfall committed five errors in the contest while Flaget misplayed the ball three times.

Both teams scored a lone run in the first frame but the Mustangs came up with four big ones in the second frame.

Westfall picked up another tally in the third, a single marker in the fifth and capped the scoring with two runs in the sixth. Flaget garnered three runs in the bottom of the seventh.

The Mustangs are now 2-0 for the season and will be at Union Wednesday.

And then there was the sports writer at last week's Masters who, somehow, got it in his column that Jack Nicklaus had scored a double eagle—sinking a 30 foot putt. It didn't happen.

"The next day my desk called me and said 'What's this. A double eagle with a 30 foot putt? That means he had to drive it 500 yards,' the writer related.

LaRue Martin Heads NBA Draft

By KEN RAPPOPORT —
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When he first got the word that he was the top pick in the National Basketball Association draft, LaRue Martin had about $10 in his pocket.

The chances are good that the 6-foot-10 Loyola of Chicago center will have quite a bit more by the time he's finished bargaining with the Portland Trail Blazers.

"What money I get now will be up to Mr. Morse," Martin said Monday, referring to his representative, attorney Arthur Morse of Chicago.

Martin, a relatively obscure name among the available college players when selected in the annual NBA draft Monday, will hopefully be a household word when the Trail Blazers finish polishing him.

The club considered him the best center in America, based primarily on his rebounding abilities. Among his gaudier accomplishments with a losing team, Martin collected more than 1,000 rebounds in three years—about 16 a game.

One of the most heralded was Bob McAdoo, North Carolina's quick big man who left school a year early as a hardship case. He was chosen No. 2 in the draft by the Buffalo Braves, even though he is under contract to the Virginia Squires of the ABA.

Before the 17 NBA teams began to make their choices known on a telephone hookup through Commissioner Walter Kennedy's office in New York, the commissioner told them, "I think some of you fellows ought to know that McAdoo has signed with Virginia... the ABA just announced it."

But it didn't deter Buffalo. The Braves, obviously ready to go to war with Virginia to get their hands on the Tar Heels' 6-9 player, didn't hesitate a second on the phone.

Dwight Davis, Houston's 6-7 forward was next to go. He was taken by the Cleveland Cavaliers, dismissing a warning from one scout that he doesn't know basketball.

The Cavaliers, who picked Notre Dame guard Austin Carr last year as the country's No. 1 choice, were impressed with Davis' raw talents. He's been compared favorably to another former Houston star, Elvin Hayes.

The rest of the clubs, with the exception of four who lost first-round picks because they took hardship cases earlier, then raced through their choices and finished the first round in less than five minutes.

All told, 154 players were taken in 10 rounds and the whole thing took one hour, 40 minutes.

Corky Calhoun, a 6-7 combination guard-forward, was the fourth player taken as Phoenix selected in that spot as the result of a trade with Houston.

The Philadelphia 76ers, in need of backcourt help, then drafted the first pure guard of the lot in Fred Boyd of Oregon State and Milwaukee, hungry for forwards, latched onto Russell Lee of Marshall. Bud Stallworth, a 6-5 guard at Kansas, went to Seattle in the first round and the New York Knicks then acquired forward Tom Riker of South Carolina.

Detroit grabbed center-forward Bob Nash of Hawaii and Boston took guard Paul Westphal of Southern California before the next two teams went for established ABA players to dramatize the scarcity of pro material in this year's draft.

Chicago picked Ralph Simpson of Denver and Milwaukee, whose earlier choice was the result of a trade, picked on Julius Erving of Virginia. Both left schools early to join the pros as hardship cases and they became eligible for the NBA because their classes graduate this year.

Travis Grant, the college division scoring king from Kentucky State who was the last selection in round one, gave Los Angeles another terrific shooter to go with Jerry West and company.

New Baseball Money Offer Eyed

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's player representatives were to meet today to discuss a new money offer in the pension dispute that has caused the sport's first general strike and delayed the opening of the season almost a week.

Meanwhile, a split developed in the ranks of the once-adamant owners over the issue of back pay to players for days lost to the strike, which the head of the striking Major League Baseball Players Association called "a terrible, terrible roadblock" to a settlement.

"We really didn't make any progress of a sufficient sort to be optimistic," Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association, said following a day which began with Miller and John Gaherin, the owners' representative, meeting in Washington with J. Curtis Counts, head of the Federal Mediation Service, and ended with the owners making their new money offer.

"There are only two issues," Miller said, "one dealing with the pension problem, which is subject to compromise. But the other issue is a terrible, terrible roadblock."

That issue boils down to this: Should the players be paid their full salaries if they still play a full 162-game schedule or should they be docked proportionately for each day they have refused to play?

"The players are on strike, they've lost pay and that's it," said Miller. "They accept that. If the owners want to pick up the schedule from here, there's no issue. But if they want to reschedule the games and fit in all 162, the players want to be paid for it."

The owners' split developed when Charles O. Finley of the Oakland A's said that he and at least five other owners have changed their position and want to compromise in the pension dispute. Finley added that the owners should not "attempt to split hairs over such a minor item" as make-up pay.

"Pay them," Finley insisted. "Both sides are going to lose any way you look at it. There's no way to go back and pick up the dates we've lost. The strike has cost my team a minimum of $250,000 and it doesn't look promising to make it up. But if the players play the entire 162 games, they should be paid their entire salary."

"A strike has never been settled without a compromise. It can't be a one-way street. Baseball must not suffer any longer and must not be made to suffer again. A fair offer must be made and then accepted."

The owners' new money offer, made Monday, totaled $400,000 to the pension package on top of their only previous public offer of $490,000, which was earmarked for the health care portion of the over-all plan.

Baseball Walkout Costing Players, Owners Heavily

NEW YORK (AP) — How much is the baseball strike costing? Plenty, whether you're on the players side, the owners side, or caught somewhere in between.

Today is the 11th day of the baseball strike, and a new issue has cropped up. The players say that if the owners want them to make up the games that have already been cancelled, the players want their full season's salaries.

Northwestern May Become Purple Haze

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—The Northwestern University Wildcats may have growled their last.

A referendum to change the school's official nickname from the Wildcats to the Purple Haze comes up for a student vote Wednesday. Student leaders predict tradition will take a beating.

Jim Bendat, a 1971 Northwestern graduate who tried unsuccessfully to get the referendum on last spring's ballot and finally succeeded this year, says many students would like to break away from the tradition of an aggressive nickname.

"Haze—like a mist—is a very peaceful thing," Bendat said. "And I don't think a less aggressive nickname will have any effect upon athletic competition."

Bendat says he tried out the new nickname on two former Northwestern football players and on Eric Hutchinson, a senior defensive back on Northwestern's 1971 football squad.

"They all loved the idea," said Bendat. "Hutchinson said he wished the team could have been the Purple Haze instead of the Wildcats when he played."

Bendat persuaded a member of Northwestern's Student Forum, a student representative assembly, to put the nickname resolution on the ballot.

While some faculty members and administrators look at the resolution as a joke, most students say they take the question seriously.

"There are a lot of really conservative people at this school," said one coed, "who probably would like to keep the nickname Wildcats just for the sake of tradition."

Junior center Dave Skalko of Gilbert, Minn., is starting for the U.S. Air Force Academy hockey team.

The owners say no. They contend that the players are paid for 182 days, rather than 162 games, and say they'll continue to dock the players 1-182nd of their season salary for each day the strike goes on.

Since the players are supposed to be paid starting opening day—April 5—today is the seventh day they're not getting their 1-182nd.

Just how much is that, in dollars and cents?

If you're making the minimum major league salary of $17,500 per year, the strike is costing you $95.15 each day it lasts. So far, you're out $673.05.

An average major leaguer, drawing a salary of, say, $22,500, has lost $123.63 per day, or $865.41 so far.

Naturally, it gets higher as you get up the pay scale.

If you're one of the 23 players reportedly making $100,000 a year or more, you're losing at least $549.45 a day. That's the figure for a $100,000-a-year man like Al Kaline, who has lost $2,846.15.

Willie Mays, making a reported $165,000 annually, has lost $906.59 per day or $6,345.13 to date. And for Henry Aaron, who makes a reported $200,000 per year, those figures are $1,098.90 per day and $7,693.30 to date.

All of which is why the players are now fighting to get their full salaries.

The owners, meanwhile, have had losses of their own.

Some games, like opening days and weekends, are bigger attractions than others and some teams likewise draw bigger crowds than others, but a figure of $50,000 per game is considered average.

Since the strike has canceled 46 games so far, that means the owners have lost a cool $2.3 million. Add to that the $200,000-plus they lost when they could not provide a "Game of the Week" for NBC to television on Saturday, and it's easy to understand why some owners might be grumbling.

CHS Golfers Blank Vikings

The Circleville Tiger golf team won their first match of the season by downing the Teays Valley linksters 10-0 Monday at the Pickaway Country Club.

Each of the five Tiger golfers earned two points against their Viking opponents.

Tiger Greg Williams was medalist for the day as he fired a 44 in Circleville's first spot. Ken Yamrick toured the course in 45, Mike Hamrick had a 46, Bob Downey carded a 47 and Spellacy had a 50.

Best score for Teays Valley was a 47 by number two golfer Tom Triance. Steve Bumgarner had a 52, Huffer carded a 50, Peters had a 55 and Randy had a 60.

Next match for Circleville will be Thursday when they travel to the Scioto Country Club to play the Bears of Upper Arlington.

new money offer.

"There are only two issues," Miller said, "one dealing with the pension problem, which is subject to compromise. But the other issue is a terrible, terrible roadblock."

That issue boils down to this: Should the players be paid their full salaries if they still play a full 162-game schedule or should they be docked proportionately for each day they have refused to play?

"The players are on strike, they've lost pay and that's it," said Miller. "They accept that. If the owners want to pick up the schedule from here, there's no issue. But if they want to reschedule the games and fit in all 162, the players want to be paid for it."

The owners' split developed when Charles O. Finley of the Oakland A's said that he and at least five other owners have changed their position and want to compromise in the pension dispute. Finley added that the owners should not "attempt to split hairs over such a minor item" as make-up pay.

"Pay them," Finley insisted. "Both sides are going to lose any way you look at it. There's no way to go back and pick up the dates we've lost. The strike has cost my team a minimum of $250,000 and it doesn't look promising to make it up. But if the players play the entire 162 games, they should be paid their entire salary."

"A strike has never been settled without a compromise. It can't be a one-way street. Baseball must not suffer any longer and must not be made to suffer again. A fair offer must be made and then accepted."

The owners' new money offer, made Monday, totaled $400,000 to the pension package on top of their only previous public offer of $490,000, which was earmarked for the health care portion of the over-all plan.

Big 5th Inning Wins Contest

Circleville Power Rips Washington Lions, 9-2

Circleville exploded for five big runs in the fifth inning to break a tie game wide open and gain a 9-2 decision over Washington C. H. Monday on the Tigers' home grounds.

Big Don Valentine opened on the hill for the Red and Black and garnered his second straight win.

The Circleville fireballer went five and one-third innings with Greg Hoskins coming on in relief in the sixth frame.

Valentine gave up two unearned runs, four hits, walked three and sent seven Lions down swinging.

HOSKINS failed to give up a base on balls or a hit while he whiffed four batters in his short stint on the mound.

Holbert, Wallace and Johnson shared mound duties for the Blue Lions. They were rapped for 10 hits, walked three and fanned three in the contest.

The Tigers opened the scoring in the first inning when Tom Taylor singled, went to second on a wild pitch and scampered home with the lead run when Paul England rapped a one-bagger.

Both teams were scoreless in the second and third inning but the Tigers plated another marker in the fourth frame. England was safe on an error, Rock Davis smashed a two-bagger, sending England to third where he scored on an infield out by Mike Speakman.

A pair of singles, two errors, a walk and a sacrifice fly gave the Blue Lions a pair of runs in the top of the fifth and a tie ball game.

However, the rampaging Tigers poured it on in the bottom of the fifth when they erupted for five runs and the game.

TERRY Morrison led off with a walk, Taylor came up with his third straight single, and both runners moved up on an infield out. England walked to put ducks on all the pads.

All runners held their bases on a pop fly which left the bases loaded with two outs. Randy Sprout followed with a slashing double and two runners tore up the dirt as they raced home.

Speakman followed with a single to plate two more Tigers and scored the fifth run of the frame on a single by Jeff Harr.

The Tigers put the icing on the cake in the sixth inning when they tallied another pair of runs.

Morrison walked, Taylor picked up a base on balls and both tallied when Davis crashed a booming three-bagger.

Taylor led the Tigers plate attack with three singles, Davis applied the power with a triple and double, Randy Sprout rapped a two-bagger and Bob Peters, England, Speakman and Harr each cracked a single.

IN the RBI department for the Red and Black, Speakman had three, Davis and Sprout two apiece and England and Harr each added one.

Everything seems to be shaping up for the Tigers with good pitching, solid hitting and a fine defense. They certainly are shaping up as a team that will demand attention in the race for the South Central Ohio League crown.

The game with Teays Valley scheduled for tonight has been postponed. The Vikings have to make up a postponed Metropolitan League game tonight.

Circleville will be at Hillsboro Wednesday night with Greg Hoskins on the mound and will host Wilmington Friday with Don Valentine going after his third straight win.

Baseball Walkout Costing Players, Owners Heavily

NEW YORK (AP) — How much is the baseball strike costing? Plenty, whether you're on the players side, the owners side, or caught somewhere in between.

Today is the 11th day of the baseball strike, and a new issue has cropped up. The players say that if the owners want them to make up the games that have already been cancelled, the players want their full season's salaries.

Northwestern May Become Purple Haze

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—The Northwestern University Wildcats may have growled their last.

A referendum to change the school's official nickname from the Wildcats to the Purple Haze comes up for a student vote Wednesday. Student leaders predict tradition will take a beating.

Jim Bendat, a 1971 Northwestern graduate who tried unsuccessfully to get the referendum on last spring's ballot and finally succeeded this year, says many students would like to break away from the tradition of an aggressive nickname.

"Haze—like a mist—is a very peaceful thing," Bendat said. "And I don't think a less aggressive nickname will have any effect upon athletic competition."

Bendat says he tried out the new nickname on two former Northwestern football players and on Eric Hutchinson, a senior defensive back on Northwestern's 1971 football squad.

"They all loved the idea," said Bendat. "Hutchinson said he wished the team could have been the Purple Haze instead of the Wildcats when he played."

Bendat persuaded a member of Northwestern's Student Forum, a student representative assembly, to put the nickname resolution on the ballot.

While some faculty members and administrators look at the resolution as a joke, most students say they take the question seriously.

"There are a lot of really conservative people at this school," said one coed, "who probably would like to keep the nickname Wildcats just for the sake of tradition."

Junior center Dave Skalko of Gilbert, Minn., is starring for the U.S. Air Force Academy hockey team.

The owners say no. They contend that the players are paid for 182 days, rather than 162 games, and say they'll continue to dock the players 1-182nd of their season salary for each day the strike goes on.

Since the players are supposed to be paid starting opening day—April 5—today is the seventh day they're not getting their 1-182nd.

Just how much is that, in dollars and cents?

If you're making the minimum major league salary of $17,500 per year, the strike is costing you $95.15 each day it lasts. So far, you're out $673.05.

An average major leaguer, drawing a salary of, say, $22,500, has lost $123.63 per day, or $865.41 so far.

Naturally, it gets higher as you get up the pay scale.

If you're one of the 23 players reportedly making $100,000 a year or more, you're losing at least $549.45 a day. That's the figure for a $100,000-a-year man like Al Kaline, who has lost $3,846.15.

Willie Mays, making a reported $165,000 annually, has lost $906.59 per day or $6,345.13 to date. And for Henry Aaron, who makes a reported $200,000 per year, those figures are $1,098.90 per day and $7,693.20 to date.

All of which is why the players are now fighting to get their full salaries.

The owners, meanwhile, have had losses of their own. Some games, like opening days and weekends, are bigger attractions than others and some teams likewise draw bigger crowds than others, but a figure of $50,000 per game is considered average.

Since the strike has canceled 46 games so far, that means the owners have lost a cool $2.3 million. Add to that the $200,000 plus they lost when they could not provide a "Game of the Week" for NBC to television on Saturday, and it's easy to understand why some owners might be grumbling.

CHS Golfers Blank Vikings

The Circleville Tiger golf team won their first match of the season by downing the Teays Valley linksters 10-0 Monday at the Pickaway Country Club.

Each of the five Tiger golfers earned two points against their Viking opponents.

Tiger Greg Williams was medalist for the day as he fired a 44 in Circleville's first spot. Ken Yamrick toured the course in 45, Mike Hamrick had a 46, Bob Downey carded a 47 and Spellacy had a 50.

Best score for Teays Valley was a 47 by number two golfer Tom Triance. Steve Bumgarner had a 52, Huffer carded a 50, Peters had a 55 and Randy had a 60.

Next match for Circleville will be Thursday when they travel to the Scioto Country Club to play the Bears of Upper Arlington.

Westfall Belts Bishop Flaget

The big bats of the Mustangs were at it again Monday as Westfall trounced Bishop Flaget, 9-4, on the latter's diamond.

The Mustangs picked up 12 hits in the contest to maintain their power attack.

Scott Riddle led the attack with a home run and two singles, Larry Adams ripped a triple and single, John Valone had a pair of one-baggers, Mike Peterson added two singles, Dave Shannon cracked a triple, Larry Harris rapped a double and Ted Musselman added a one-bagger.

Musselman, Peterson and Rick Stonerock shared mound duties for Westfall. They allowed three hits, walked five and fanned 15.

FLAGET hurlers gave up six walks and struckout five.

Westfall committed five errors in the contest while Flaget misplayed the ball three times.

Both teams scored a lone run in the first frame but the Mustangs came up with four big ones in the second frame. Westfall picked up another tally in the third, a single marker in the fifth and capped the scoring with two runs in the sixth. Flaget garnered three runs in the bottom of the seventh.

The Mustangs are now 2-0 for the season and will be at Unioto Wednesday.

Pro Golfer Howie Johnson Can't Satisfy Young Fan

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) —

Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Veteran Howie Johnson was telling about the time he was approached for an autograph by a sub-teen boy and Howie signed it: "Ben Hogan."

"The boy went back to his dad and said, 'Hey, look, I got Ben Hogan's autograph.' His old man looked me over and said, 'Naw, that's not Ben Hogan. He's too big to be Hogan.'"

"So the boy comes back to me and I tell him, 'Okay, I'll sign my real name.' So I wrote 'Sam Snead.'"

"Back to his dad goes the boy. 'Naw,' said the old man. 'He's not old enough to be Snead.'"

"The boy comes back to me again. I tell him, 'Okay, this time I'll really sign my right

name. And I do. Howard Johnson."

"The boy looks at it, looks up at me and says: 'Twenty-eight flavors? You ain't no ice cream man. You look like a golf pro. Now gimme your real autograph.'"

And then there was the sports writer at last week's Masters who, somehow, got it in his column that Jack Nicklaus had scored a double eagle—sinking a 30 foot putt. It didn't happen.

"The next day my desk called me and said 'What's this. A double eagle with a 30 foot putt? That means he had to drive it 500 yards,' the writer related.

"I told 'em, 'Well, you wanted me to get some exclusive stuff, something that everyone else didn't have. Well, I did. I got something no one else had. Even Nicklaus didn't have it.'"

2 British Soldiers Die In Explosion

BELFAST (AP) — Two British soldiers killed by a guerrilla time bomb died while protecting Irish youths who were stoning them, the army said today.

Lance Bombardier Eric Blackburn, 24, and Bombardier Brian Thomasson, 21, were killed by a 40 pounds of gelignite that exploded in a Roman Catholic district of Londonderry Monday night. This brought the death toll in the three-year-old Northern Ireland conflict to 300, including 59 soldiers. Ninety-four have died this year.

Army headquarters said a telephone call warned that a bomb had been planted at a bowling pavilion in the Rosemount area of Londonderry.

Soldiers found it and "proceeded to disperse young hooligans throwing stones in the area and to prevent others from approaching," the army statement said.

"On a further outbreak of stoning the patrol commander and the second in command, although they knew the bomb was there, both went forward from safe positions to disperse the youths again.

"Had this action not been taken the youths could have been seriously injured by the explosion. While doing so, the bomb exploded, killing the second in command and gravely wounding the patrol commander who was dead on arrival at hospital."

The army said the Official wing of the Irish Republican Army said it planted the bomb.

Mideast Oil Importance Emphasized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State John N. Irwin II says that, in the face of growing U.S. dependence on Middle East oil, an Arab ultimatum for Washington to turn its back on Israel "would be a problem."

He also told a House committee Monday that failure to coordinate the demands of the United States and other Western nations for remaining world oil could force strong competition "with attendant undesirable repercussions on price and security."

Irwin testified on global considerations as the House Interior Committee began 10 days of hearings on "The National Energy Crisis."

He said the United States may have to import 50 per cent of its oil by 1980—35 per cent from the Middle East.

The undersecretary also said the U.S. shift from self-sufficiency to dependence on imports must be coordinated with other Western industrial nations—particularly Japan and Europe which are almost entirely dependent on imports—to avoid conflict.

Calling oil "the most political of all commodities," Irwin said the United States should minimize its demands on Middle East oil by increasing efforts to import more from Canada and open up the "heavy oil zone" in Venezuela.

Bank Robbery Case Continued In Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Testimony is slated to resume next Thursday in the trial of George Hazelwood Jr., who is accused of robbing a bank Nov. 15 in Salt Lick, Ky.

Asst. U.S. Atty. James Cook told the U.S. District court Monday after two days of testimony that he may have completed his case.

He said he would announce his decision when the court reassembled.

In Monday's testimony, John Murphy, an FBI agent stationed at Pikeville, said Hazelwood told him Nov. 15 he had robbed a bank at Salt Lick, "then had gone home, changed clothes, packaged the money, taken it to the post office and mailed it."

Cattle Business Observed By FFA

Amanda Clearcreek FFA Chapter took a trip April 5 to tour facilities at Coda and the L & J Ranch.

Milking operations were underway at the L & J when members were shown the farm by Ed Hall. One hundred head of Brown Swiss are milked at the farm twice a day. One milking house was converted into a calf barn with 22 stalls.

The L & J Ranch sell their steers and keep the heifers for replacement. In the milking parlor, up to ten cows can be milked at a time. The cow lot is made totally of concrete slanted toward a middle drain.

Mr. Kellogg met the FFA group for a tour of a beef and dairy bull operation where they collect semen. The boys were told the procedures used in collecting the semen and shown slides, narrated by Kellogg.

Later the group were shown the instruments used and the actual procedure. In a tour of the barns, they were shown the herd of 80 bulls and the merry-go-round like structure where the animals were exercised.

Several Injured In Columbus Fire At Elderly Home

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Four persons were treated and released from Mount Carmel Hospital following a three-alarm fire at a seven-story home for the elderly on the city's near west side early today.

The fire caused minor damage to the building, Worley Terrace, which is operated by the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority, and forced evacuation of some tenants.

Those treated at the hospital, all elderly, included three persons treated for smoke inhalation and another treated for a minor cut.

Firemen were called to the fire shortly after 2 a.m. and had it under control within less than an hour.

Queen Elizabeth II May Be Shocked

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II may be the object of some shocking news during her state visit to France next month, according to the Sunday Times.

The newspaper said it took a survey of the gossip that has appeared about her over the years in the French press. Among the results of the survey:

She has abdicated 63 times and has been on the point of breaking up with husband Prince Philip 73 times. She has been pregnant 92 times, suffered 149 accidents, had nine miscarriages and gone on the pill 11 times.

Press Argentine Manhunt; General, Industrialist Die

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine government pressed large-scale manhunt today for the leftist terrorists who killed an Italian industrialist and an army general. President Alejandro Lanusse said the slayings would not change his decision to hold elections next March to return the country to civilian control.

Guerrillas of the leftist Peoples Revolutionary Movement (ERP), a Trotskyist organization bent on blocking the elections, were blamed for the killings that took place within three hours of each other Monday in cities 180 miles apart.

Muskie Shuns Hoosiers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — While three names remain on the Indiana Democratic presidential primary May 2, one of the candidates, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, will not campaign here.

Muskie's campaign headquarters in Washington said Monday the presidential hopeful would concentrate on states with large delegations to the July 10 National Democratic Convention.

Indiana has 76 delegates. Ohio, which also has a May 2 primary, has 153 delegate votes up for grabs that day.

Muskie's announcement leaves Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace active in the Indiana race.

A spokesman for Muskie said the senator's campaign efforts would be directed primarily toward Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Charges Dismissed In Ravenna Slaying

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) — A first-degree murder charge against a 34-year-old Ravenna man has been dismissed at the request of the prosecutor.

The case against Jack Lee Fisher was dropped Monday after the prosecution's only witness—Richard Frock, 23, of Lake Milton—testified that Fisher was not his accomplice in the Jan. 1, 1971, slaying of John Kaniec, 68, of Solon.

Frock had admitted his part in the slaying and been charged with first-degree murder. The shooting occurred in the Twin Lakes Tavern north of Kent owned by Kaniec's son.

Gen. Juan Carlos Sanchez, 52, commander of Argentina's 2nd army, was slain by terrorists who sprayed submachinegun bullets into his car in Rosario, north of the capital. The volley also killed a woman bystander and severely wounded the general's driver.

The guerrillas who three weeks ago kidnaped Oberdan Sallustro, 56-year-old general manager of Fiat's Argentine subsidiary, fired two bullets into their helpless hostage as police closed in on their hideout outside of Buenos Aires, but three of the four terrorists escaped.

Argentine labor unions, political parties and business groups condemned both killings. Lanusse met with union officials, political party leaders and directors of Buenos Aires newspapers, radio and television stations.

He told them he was determined to hold elections in March saying, "I am sure that the definitive solutions to our problems will only be achieved when the people have the right to govern themselves."

Gen. Jorge Esteban Caceres Monie, head of the federal police, was named to succeed Sanchez as commander of the 10,000-man 2nd Army.

Arraign Pair In Abduction And Murder

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Two Marion Correctional Institution escapees were to be arraigned today on charges of abducting a man later found murdered.

James Allen Patterson, 40, Lima, and Lawrence Frank Lamont, 27, Cleveland, were to appear before a U. S. Magistrate here.

They are accused of kidnapping Frank Welzbacher, 36, during a carryout robbery last Thursday, U. S. Atty. Peter Handwork said.

Wetzler's body was found just across the Michigan border Sunday by a couple looking at real estate. Police said he had been shot to death.

Patterson and Lamont were picked up Saturday in Lima by police called to investigate a disturbance. They escaped the Marion facility Feb. 23.

Patterson was serving 1-15 years for burglary in Allen County. Lamont was serving 10-20 years on a Lucas County forgery conviction.

Disaster Report Urges Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans must change the way they plan and build if the hazards of natural forces such as hurricanes and earthquakes are to be reduced, the Office of Emergency Preparedness told Congress Monday.

The call for a national program for land use and building came in a comprehensive report issued by the OEP under a mandate from Congress contained in the Disaster Relief Act of 1970.

"It is clear that something must be done about the way land is used, the kind of structures built on it and the materials and practices used in construction," read the three-volume work on disaster preparedness.
